

Abstract: “Using the Energy of the Law to Change the Energy of the World”

Panel Presentation by Professor Mary Wood
Public Interest Environmental Law Conference
March 7, 2008

This panel will discuss the role of the public interest in energy policy and law, particularly in relation to climate change. It will also focus on environmental justice and using the law to affect change in the US and the UK. After brief introductions, the panel will be led by questions from the respective audiences on these themes. The discussion should reflect concerns arising from both sides.
