YOUR PARTNER IN STUDENT LEARNING & ASSESSMENT

Anchored by faculty-authored self-assessments keyed to our most popular casebooks, CasebookPlus allows students to test their understanding of core concepts as they are learning them in class.

Faculty who wish to view their students' quiz progress and results can do so with optional, customizable reporting capability that helps evaluate your students' understanding of the material. This feedback can also help your school demonstrate compliance with the new ABA Assessment and Learning Outcomes standards.

Contact your West Academic Account Manager and learn how to adopt the CasebookPlus option of your chosen text today!

THE SOUTHEASTERN ASSOCIATION OF LAW SCHOOLS

A Message from the President

Dear SEALS Colleagues and Families,

Welcome to the 70th Anniversary Conference of the Southeastern Association of Law Schools (SEALS) at the Boca Raton Resort & Club in Boca Raton, Florida. This conference is special. SEALS offers opportunities for everyone: from those who are candidates for professorships, to newer professors, to those of us who have been in the academy for years. Scholarly engagement is rich and varied, and we have built long-lasting relationships. Indeed, many of our children have grown up together.

We have some exciting new opportunities this year. First, SEALS is hosting a two-day Mindfulness in Law Schools Conference, co-sponsored with the AALS Section on Balance in Legal Education, the Mindfulness in Law Society, and the Frederick P. Lenz Foundation. This was the brainchild (no pun intended) of Professors Katerina Lewinbuk and Richard Reuben. A steering committee, including Professors Susan Brooks, Leonard Riskin, Caprice Roberts, Scott Rogers, Julie Sandine, Rebecca Simon, and Russ Weaver, joined Professors Lewinbuk and Reuben to bring the program to fruition. Folks attending the Mindfulness Conference are most welcome at the SEALS offerings, and folks registered for SEALS are, reciprocally, encouraged to attend the Mindfulness programs.

Second, for those of you interested in writing books, we have planned a special evening program for you: How to Pitch a Book. The book publishers, who will be the panelists for this program, will then be available to hear and comment on your book pitches over subsequent days of the conference. Many thanks to these publishers for participating in this innovative program for SEALS attendees: Ms. Pamela Siege Chandler, West Academic; Mr. Thomas LeBien, Harvard University Press; Mr. Niko Pfund, Oxford University Press; Mr. Keith Sipe, Carolina Academic Publishing; and Mr. Joe Terry, Wolters Kluwer.

Also new this year, with the outstanding help of Professor Caprice Roberts, as Vice-Chair of the Program Committee, SEALS has a number of Resource Teams that helped develop programming in their areas of expertise. SEALS continues to have democratic programming in that anyone may make proposals. Professor Roberts assisted with proposals, crafted new programming, and worked to minimize overlap and scheduling conflicts.

As always, we are excited that we continue to grow. We welcome three new member schools. Thanks to Loyola University Chicago School of Law and the University of the Pacific, McGeorge School of Law for hosting a reception to introduce themselves to SEALS! Welcome also to Yeshiva University, Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law, which will host a reception in a following summer.

Kudos to the SEALS Scholarly Research Committee, headed by Co-Chairs Professors Colin Marks and Gary Simson. They have reached agreements with two law reviews to publish as symposia papers presented at SEALS. The Kentucky Law Review will publish "Religious Exemptions and Harm to Others" and the Mercer Law Review will publish "Disruptive Innovation in Criminal Defense."

We are commemorating our 70th anniversary with a symposium on the history, missions, and programs of SEALS that will be published in the UMKC Law Review in the spring of 2018. Past presidents, officers, board members and, of course, the Executive Director and Deputy Executive Director, will tell the stories of how SEALS developed as an organization, of the ways one of its central missions—creating programs to help bring newer professors into the academy—grew, and what makes the programming and the culture of SEALS unique.

This conference owes its existence to many, but our administrative staff deserves a special thank you for making the programs and events happen seamlessly. Please take a moment to thank them. Moreover, many of the coffee breaks, breakfasts, and, most importantly ice cream, would not be possible without the overwhelming support from our sponsors: Carolina Academic Press, Edward Elgar Publishing, Thomson Reuters, West Academic, The Federalist Society, and Wolters Kluwer. Please be sure to stop by our sponsors' tables to thank them and hear about their wonderful products.

Finally, this conference could not exist without the tireless work of SEALS's Executive Director, Professor Russ Weaver, and his Deputy Director, Linda Jellum, as well. The various committees have also worked hard to ensure that new scholars have speaking opportunities and mentors, that programs have moderators, and that the program is organized, interesting, and up-to-date. In sum, SEALS is a collaborative production.

Please feel free to contact me or any officer or board member if you want to become more involved, have any ideas for programming or publication, or can think of ways SEALS can become more inclusive.

Enjoy the conference!

Warmly,
Nancy

Program Format Overview

The SEALS 2017 Annual Meeting brochure reflects the contributions of committees, resource teams, and individuals in proposing panel topics, securing speakers, moderators, mentors, and writing panel descriptions.

The SEALS 2017 Annual Meeting program includes a variety of program formats. The paragraphs below provide a brief description of each format. Unless otherwise indicated, every program is open to all SEALS attendees.

New Scholars Workshop

The New Scholars Workshop offers newer faculty members an opportunity to present, and receive feedback on, a work in progress. Over the course of the annual meeting, there will be eleven New Scholars Workshop sessions, each typically featuring a moderator and three or four speakers. Speakers are nominated by member schools, and each speaker is assigned a mentor, who is available to provide both pre- and post-presentation advice and commentary. Whenever possible, SEALS groups New Scholars Workshop panels thematically.

Prospective Law Teachers and Newer Law Teachers Workshops

In 2013, SEALS introduced two new features that built upon the success of its New Scholars Workshop. Given the features' success, SEALS is continuing them. The first is the Prospective Law Teachers Workshop (planned by the committee of the same name), which is aimed at assisting VAPs, Fellows, LL.M.s, and others interested in obtaining an entry-level academic position. This Workshop includes mock interviews, CV reviews, and various informational sessions to help attendees navigate the hiring market. The second new feature is the Newer Law Teachers Workshop (planned by the Beginning and Newer Law Teachers Committee). These Workshops focus on issues that are of particular interest to the newer law teachers, such as becoming a good classroom teacher, creating an effective course, methods of assessment, becoming a good scholar, and balancing service and scholarship.

Topical Workshops

Each year, SEALS offers interrelated events under a Workshop designation. Topics vary from year to year. Each Workshop has several events, which usually are scheduled for a single day but sometimes extend into a second day. When possible, Workshop sessions are scheduled to follow the same break schedule as other programs, so that attendees with multiple interests can attend a topical Workshop session in one time slot and a different topical Workshop (or some other event) in another time slot in the same day.

Discussion Groups

Participants in these events will focus on a particular topic or theme, as identified in the program. Although Discussion Groups are convened in different ways, in many cases, the participants prepare a short paper in advance of the annual meeting that the other participants read and comment upon at the session. These sessions are often longer than a traditional panel session to allow for a more in-depth, interactive discussion of the topic or theme. Discussion Groups may, but need not be, linked to Workshop programs. Those who convene Discussion Groups are encouraged to include participants selected from a call for papers to the SEALS membership. The program description for each session offers additional information about the composition of the event and the way in which the session will be conducted.

Panels

SEALS offers many "standalone" panels organized around a specific topic or theme. Topics and themes may be theoretical, doctrinal, pedagogical, service-oriented, law reform-oriented, or focused on other matters of interest to law school faculty members and administrators. Panels are moderated and typically consist of up to five featured speakers. In most cases, presenters are not required to submit or bring written drafts or copies of their related work.

Luncheons

The Call for Papers Luncheon features the work of faculty members whose papers were selected from among those submitted for review. This luncheon is ticketed and requires advance reservations. Please consider attending the Call for Papers lunch to support the winning scholars, but be sure to purchase your ticket in advance.

The New Scholars Luncheon, sponsored by Wolters Kluwer, offers a networking opportunity for newer faculty members. It is not limited to those who present at the New Scholars Workshop, but it does require advance reservations.

The Steering Committee Luncheon is the meeting at which officers and committee chairs report on SEALS activities. It is also the forum at which institutional member schools elect new SEALS officers and other trustees. Each institutional and affiliate member school selects one individual to represent it at this luncheon (in addition to any faculty member who is already a trustee or committee chair).

West Academic is also sponsoring a luncheon that is open to all attendees.

Breaks and Receptions

Breaks between sessions (which are sponsored by Carolina Academic Press, Edward Elgar Publishing, Thomson Reuters, West Academic, and Wolters Kluwer) and receptions (sponsored by West Academic and the Federalist Society) provide opportunities to interact with colleagues at other schools who share your teaching or scholarly interests and with representatives from publishers. Depending on the type and timing of the event, beverages or food may be available. Receptions hosted by our newest members (The University of the Pacific, McGeorge School of Law, and the Loyola University Chicago School of Law) introduce those schools to SEALS. The New Scholars Luncheon (sponsored by Wolters Kluwer), and the Call for Papers Luncheon are ticketed and require advance reservations; the other events do not.

Thanks are owed to West Academic, which printed this program and the Day-At-A-Glance.

Monday, July 31, 2017 Schedule of Events

9:00 AM - 12:00 PM WORKSHOP ON TEACHING

Discussion Group: Legal Research and Law Practice Technology Pedagogy

This discussion group addresses ABA Standards 303, 304, and 306 on experiential, simulation, and distance learning and how classes on legal research and law practice technology can be designed to meet the requirements of these ABA Standards. Topics include experiential and simulation pedagogies, legal research clinics, flipped classrooms, best practices in online teaching, legal research competencies, and law practice technology classes.

Street, University of North Carolina School of Law; Professor Rebecca Trammell, Stetson University College of Law; Mr. Todd Venie, University of Florida Fredric G. Levin College of Law; Professor Sally Wise, University of Miami School of Law

9:00 AM - 12:00 PM WORKSHOP ON CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

Discussion Group: Religious Exemptions and Harm to Others

The U.S. Supreme Court has held that the First Amendment sometimes allows, sometimes requires, and sometimes forbids religious exemptions from neutral and generally applicable laws. In recent years, scholars have focused on the issue of whether religious exemptions improperly impose harms on third parties. They have asked whether there is (or should be) a principle prohibiting religious exemptions that burden third parties, whether that principle has constitutional roots, where that principle might be located within legal doctrine, and how that principle might be applied. This discussion group brings together scholars with different answers to those questions to explore the various issues and advance the academic debate.

Moderators: Professor Christopher Lund, Wayne State University Law School

Discussants: Professor Kathleen A. Brady, Emory University School of Law; Professor Carl Esbeck, University of Missouri School of Law; Professor Frederick Gedicks, Brigham Young University, J. ### 10:00 AM - Praxis & Rhetoric—Advancements in Legal Writing

12:00 PM

This panel focuses on the future of legal writing programs in light of the ABA's increased emphasis on practice skills, experiential learning, and assessments. The panel of experts in the field explores the challenges posed by these policies and the ideal path forward for legal writing programs to maintain their substantive vision while incorporating new requirements. Panelists also reflect on dynamic approaches to programmatic legal writing offerings that emphasize practice skills that enhance research and writing abilities for all students.

Moderators: Professor Alexa Chew, University of North Carolina School of Law; Professor Marci Rosenthal, Florida International University College of Law

Speakers: Professor Brad Desnoyer, University of Missouri School of Law; Professor Ben Smith, Mississippi College School of Law; Professor Margaret Hughes Vath, Georgia State University College of Law

10:00 AM - WORKSHOP ON PROPERTY

12:00 PM

Discussion Group: Property at SCOTUS

During the Fall 2016 term, the U.S. Supreme Court took on several property related cases. Murr v. Wisconsin presented a takings challenge to conventional zoning rights in the face of potential vested rights and the relevant parcel question. Fair housing reemerged in two consolidated cases before the court -- Bank of America v. Miami and Wells Fargo & Co. v. Miami. And Venezuela v. Helmerich & Payne International sought to clarify when a foreign government may be sued in U.S. courts for seizing property located in that country but owned by a U.S. firm. Property scholars discuss the impact of these decisions on property jurisprudence, theory, and function.

1:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON PROPERTY

2:45 PM Discussion Group: Property, Retroactivity, and Obergefell

In the first decision of its kind, a judge in Bucks County Pennsylvania allowed retroactive recognition of a same-sex common-law marriage. Dr. Sabrina Mauer and Dr. Kimberly Underwood, a gay couple were married in the early 1990s. In 2015, they married under the now sanctioned state processes and three months later, one spouse died. The court held that the marriage dated back to the 1990s, which had a number of impacts for the surviving spouse's Social Security rights and other property rights. Other courts have differed or struggled to come to similar conclusions. This discussion group will consider the retroactivity of Obergefell and how that can impact property rights -- be they inheritance, marital/ community property, etc.

Moderators: Professor Sally Brown Richardson, Tulane University Law School

Discussants: Professor Andrea Carroll, Louisiana State University Paul M. Hebert Law Center; Professor J. Amy Dillard, University of Baltimore School of Law; Professor Tiffany Graham, University of South Dakota School of Law; Professor Jamila Jefferson-Jones, University of Missouri-Kansas City School of Law; Professor Diane J. Klein, University of La Verne College of Law; Professor Anthony Kreis, Chicago-Kent College of Law at Illinois Institute of Technology; Professor Christopher Odinet, Southern University Law Center; Professor Charles Rhodes, South Texas College of Law Houston; Professor Marc Roark, Savannah Law School; Professor Ronald Scalise, Tulane University Law School

1:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION

2:45 PM Utilizing ADR Competitions to Foster Practical Dispute Resolution Skills

Given that so few cases actually go to trial, it is critical that lawyers know how to negotiate effectively to resolve disputes. Through alternative dispute resolution (ADR) competitions, law schools can provide students with opportunities to develop their negotiation skills. This panel explores why participation in ADR competitions is beneficial for students and how the skills learned have direct application to practice. Panelists review specific strategies for implementing a successful ADR competition program. How should students be selected and trained? What are the benefits of tying participation to academic credit? How can this be done within the constraints of shrinking budgets? Panelists identify various ADR competition opportunities, internal tryout processes, coaching, scheduling, budget constraints, academic credit, and more.

1:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON HEALTH LAW

2:45 PM Updates on Public Health Law and Emergency Preparedness

This panel explores the latest developments in and challenges to our public health system with respect to emergency preparedness. The panel begins with a discussion of Zika as a case study for persistent shortcomings in our nation's public health readiness, particularly with respect to delays in legislative response. The panel transitions to the impact of these broad failings in two contexts: hospitals (and the consequent reimbursement issues faced by hospitals in the face of emergencies) and rural communities (and how federal and state systems fail to adapt emergency preparedness to address particular rural populations' needs). The panel ends with clear proposals for how to improve public health readiness and address special needs for hospitals and vulnerable populations.

Speakers: Professor Jacqueline Fox, University of South Carolina School of Law; Professor Rob Gatter, Saint Louis University School of Law; Professor Browne Lewis, Cleveland State University, Cleveland-Marshall College of Law; Professor Jennifer Oliva, West Virginia University College of Law

1:00 PM - Digital Tools in Democratic Elections: Lessons from the Trump and Clinton Campaigns

2:45 PM

The speakers in this session will explore a variety of issues related to the recent presidential election: Clinton's email problems; Clinton/Trump & WikiLeaks; Cyberattacks on the Democratic party and the new Cold War; how the candidates used digital tools in their campaigns; social networks and populism.

Moderators: Dean Thomas Galligan, Louisiana State University Paul M. Hebert Law Center

Beasley School of Law; Professor Jonathan Will, Mississippi College School of Law

1:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON TEACHING

2:45 PM Teaching through Injustice

Since Michael Brown's death in 2014, our students have been inundated with reports of incidents between police officers and African-American men, women and children. Many of these confrontations have resulted in death, physical harm, psychological harm, and protests, as well as federal investigations. Some have resulted in criminal charges against officers, while others have not. These incidents have raised more questions than answers. This is particularly true for our students, who are learning about law and legal institutions with these incidents as context. As a result, many students are questioning and struggling with the very meaning of justice as well as their role(s) in various legal systems. This panel addresses the challenges of teaching students who are losing faith in justice.

Moderators: Professor Michael Pinard, University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law

2:45 PM Supreme Court Update: Business, Administrative, Intellectual Property, Securities, Tax, and Workplace Issues

Every year, the U.S. Supreme Court decides a handful of cases that have wide-ranging impact beyond the particular litigants. This panel and its companion panel addressing the Supreme Court's individual rights decisions are staples at SEALS. The panelists, who are known experts in their respective fields, examine the business, administrative, securities, intellectual property, tax, and workplace law decisions from the Supreme Court's recently completed term.

6:00 PM Discussion Group: Beyond the Socratic Method in Trusts and Estates

Many trusts and estates courses have historically focused their teaching techniques on the traditional Socratic method, and much of trusts and estates scholarship has focused on the development of doctrine within the field itself. This discussion group will explore pedagogy that is expanding the ways of teaching and studying trusts and estates and related doctrines. The discussion group will address: 1) innovations in teaching, including both skills and doctrine; and 2) incorporating concepts from Elder Law, Family Law, Property, and Professional Responsibility into Trusts and Estates -- and vice versa.

6:00 PM Discussion Group: Current Issues in Family and Juvenile Law

This program provides an opportunity for participants to discuss their current scholarship interests. Tentative topics focus on psychological issues such as the impact of insecure attachment and the effects of trauma on juveniles. Other topics include the reinstatement of parental rights, the growing number of young adult courts targeting 18 to 24-year-olds, as well as equal protection challenges to different constitutional recognition of the parental rights of mothers and fathers. Further discussion promises to engage evolving area of the law related to online privacy and the tension between parents and children's rights, as well as areas affected by the decision in Obergefell, such as state parentage laws.

3:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON CRIMINAL JUSTICE

6:00 PM Discussion Group: Disruptive Innovation in Criminal Defense

This discussion group explores existing and imaginable innovations in criminal defense that would depart from, and ideally disrupt, conventional ways of doing things. Participants are invited to examine and propose innovations in individual representations, in the broad-scale delivery of legal services, and at other levels. In other words, this discussion group asks what can be done differently that will make a difference in criminal defense. Additionally, it explores the legal, political and other barriers to innovation. Finally, the discussion group considers the implications of this inquiry for teaching and scholarship.

Tuesday, August 1, 2017 Schedule of Events

8:00 AM - 10:00 AM Loans, Law Students, and Legal Careers (How Student Do—and Possibly Will—Afford Law School)

Law loans are among the most controversial and troubling aspects of the current law school crisis and are important to the future of law schools. Repayment of these loans are a substantial burden on many law graduates. On the other hand, the same loans are the lifeblood of modern legal education—making legal education accessible to a wide range of students. The rules regarding loan repayment are both complicated and critically important to law students and their law schools. Counseling law students about student loans and repayment options can make a substantial difference in their professional lives as lawyers.

This session features leading authorities on law loans, repayment options, and counseling of students regarding loans and repayment.

A special discussion on the topic of student loans and the future of legal education will follow this presentation, during the afternoon of August 1.

Moderators: Professor Lawrence Dessem, University of Missouri School of Law; Professor Steven Smith, California Western School of Law

Speakers: Mr. Christopher Chapman, Access Group; Associate Dean Susan Krinsky, University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law

10:15 AM - WORKSHOP ON TEACHING AND BUSINESS LAW

12:00 AM Teaching Communication Skills in Transactional Simulations

This panel addresses factors and processes involved in teaching communication skills in upper-level transactional simulation courses. The panelists include representatives of different curricular approaches to the development and implementation of upper-level transactional simulations, and they also have significant experience in practicing transactional law. They discuss how their courses and materials focus on both written and oral communication skills for different audiences, such as clients, supervising attorneys, and boards of directors. In particular, they discuss (1) experiential exercises that are designed to give meaningful feedback to students, (2) interdisciplinary opportunities with business schools, and (3) issues related to generational, gender, and cultural communications in transactional law.

Moderators: Professor Katherine M. Koops, Emory University School of Law

Speakers: Dean Eric J. Gouvin, Western New England University School of Law; Professor James E. Moliterno, Washington and Lee University School of Law; Professor Carol Morgan, University of Georgia School of Law; Professor Carol Newman, University of Missouri School of Law

10:15 AM - WORKSHOP ON CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

12:00 PM Supreme Court Update: Individual Rights

Every year, the U.S. Supreme Court decides a handful of cases that have wide-ranging impact beyond the particular litigants. This panel and its companion panel addressing the Supreme Court's business law decisions are staples at SEALS. The panelists, who are known experts in their respective fields, examine the individual rights decisions from the Supreme Court's recently completed term in an interactive format.

10:15 AM - International Learners and Legal Writing: Pitfalls and Promising Practices

12:00 PM

At many law schools today, the number of international students is increasing. These students come from different legal and educational systems and may have trouble understanding and learning the conventions of American legal discourse. This panel, composed of legal writing and English as a Second Language specialists from various law schools, examines areas in legal writing that may be troublesome for non-native English students. Beginning with an overview of cultural differences in writing conventions and expectations, panelists present how they teach different aspects of American legal writing. Panelists cover teaching summaries of legal rules and their various sources of law; IRAC discourse organization and answering essay exam questions; and understanding fact-pattern exercises and responding to them.

Moderators: Professor Kirsten Schaezel, Emory University School of Law

Speakers: Professor Marta Baffy, Georgetown University Law Center; Professor Stephen Horowitz, St. John's University School of Law; Professor Catherine Schenker, American University, Washington College of Law

10:15 AM - WORKSHOP ON HEALTH LAW

12:00 PM

Updates on Section 1557 of the Affordable Care Act and Healthcare Discrimination

Section 1557 of the Affordable Care Act (ACA) prohibits discrimination in healthcare based on race, gender, age, and disability. This important antidiscrimination provision has newly been implemented six years after the adoption of the ACA. This panel explores the meaning of this new health-law-based civil right in several healthcare settings. Specifically, this panel explores the new protections for sex-based discrimination in healthcare, the impact of antidiscrimination in hospital/clinical settings, the limits of Section 1557 in combatting health status discrimination, and how Section 1557 will interface with employer-sponsored health insurance and ERISA.

10:15 AM - WORKSHOP ON CRIMINAL JUSTICE

12:00 PM Procedural Issues in Policing the Police

We are in the midst of a national debate about the need for police reform. Frequently, this conversation focuses on policy questions as informed by the partially observed and refracted facts of different cases. This focus overlooks the role of procedure in mediating issues of liability and accountability. From pleading standards, discovery rules, and abstention and immunity doctrines to summary judgment and beyond, procedures are the tools for and hurdles to holding the police accountable and establishing a baseline of liability or non-liability that can inform debates about the desirability and shape of necessary police reform. This panel addresses these procedural issues from multiple methodological and doctrinal angles.

1:30 PM - WORKSHOP ON CRIMINAL JUSTICE

3:15 PM The Crisis in Policing: Problems and Solutions

This panel addresses the current crisis in policing, bringing together legal academics who have thought about policing from various angles. Cynthia Lee has written about race, lethal force, and policing. Frank Rudy Cooper is working on a book on masculinities and policing. Avidan Cover has written on the law on excessive force and qualified immunity for police officers. Seth Stoughton, a former police officer, is known for his idea that police officers should adopt a guardian, rather than a warrior, mentality. Each panelist will comment on the current crisis in policing, identifying particular problems related to this crisis and possible solutions.

1:30 PM - Conflicting Values: Dakota Access Pipeline, Tribal Identity, and Environmental Norms

3:15 PM

The saga around the Dakota Access Pipeline involved treaty rights between sovereign nations, tribal identity, environmental policy, and energy-based economic growth. Those tensions exist through the lens of tribal and environmental protestors in conflict with federal agencies about the use of dedicated land space. Underlying these tensions are federal and state policies that often fail to understand the role of tribal claims to natural resources. This panel considers how to talk about tribal and sovereign interests, as well as lessons learned from the Dakota Access Pipeline.

1:30 PM - NEWER LAW TEACHERS WORKSHOP

3:15 PM Discussion Group: What I'd Like to Ask a Dean--An Opportunity for Newer Law Professors to Ask Questions and Get Advice

The first few years of being a law professor are tough. Some people seem to have their own independent, external sources of information while others immediately find helpful mentors. It can be hard to know how to manage faculty meeting politics, how to find the right balance between teaching, service, and politics, and who to go to for advice. For the last four years, this panel has brought together a diverse group of deans to share their general perspectives and to answer individual questions. Newer faculty have found it helpful to connect with deans outside their own school as well as to hear different perspectives on what are usually universal issues.

1:30 PM - WORKSHOP ON HEALTH LAW

3:15 PM Health Reform After the 2016 Presidential Election

A central aspect of President Trump's campaign platform was to repeal and replace the Affordable Care Act. This panel will examine the 2016 election's impact on healthcare delivery and financing in America. speakers will discuss the effects of an Affordable Care Act repeal and replacement (and other reforms) on the private insurance market, Medicare, Medicaid, and hospital finance and delivery. The impact of the 2016 election on healthcare civil rights will also be explored.

1:30 PM - WORKSHOP ON BUSINESS LAW

3:15 PM Discussion Group: Three Felonies a Day?: Is There a Problem of White-Collar Overcriminalization?

In a recent book, Three Felonies a Day, attorney Harvey Silverglate spins a narrative of vague federal laws in the United States that have created an environment in which Chief Executive Officers (CEOs), low-level employees, accountants, doctors, etc. often find themselves to be the targets of federal criminal prosecutions "despite sensibly believing that they did nothing wrong, broke no laws, and harmed not a single person." Is there a problem of white collar overcriminalization? If so, what are some possible solutions? If there is no problem of overcriminalization, what might explain the contrary perception highlighted by Silverglate and others? This discussion group explores these and related questions.

1:30 PM - Sexual Misconduct and the Department of Education's Office of Civil Rights

3:15 PM

In recent years, some have alleged that the U.S. Department of Education's Office of Civil Rights (OCR) has "overreached" in its handling of sexual misconduct cases with a potential infringement of administrative due process rights, as well as of free speech rights. Some universities, which have followed OCR guidelines, have been challenged in court. This panel will explore all facets of this issue from diverse perspectives. Are the OCR guidelines necessary and appropriate? Do they comport with due process requirements? Do they infringe free speech interests?

3:30 PM - Discussion Group: The Law of Equity

6:00 PM

This discussion group analyzes the tensions of equity. We examine the presence of equity concepts in remedies, underlying substantive areas, and defenses. The concept of equity has legal and lay meanings. Negatively, equity means unbridled discretion; positively, fairness. Functionalism promotes less emphasis on equity, but historical roots are strong. Equity lives after the merger of law and equity. The U.S. Supreme Court continues to alter injunctive relief jurisprudence affecting underlying rights at stake. Certain areas of law such as restitution and unjust enrichment are closely tied to equitable foundations, causing misperceptions of legal restitution and its implications on jury trial rights, defenses, and statutes of limitations. Finally, we explore whether purely legal remedies benefit from maintaining separate conceptions of equity versus borrowing equitable doctrines.

6:30 PM Discussion Group: Criminal Justice and Technology: Changes in Law, Practice, and Culture

A wide variety of new technologies have emerged in the criminal justice system, leading to the enactment of new crimes, the use of new police investigation strategies, and the development of new kinds of evidence to prosecute and defend those charged with crimes. For example, video evidence is almost routinely available because many police officers wear cameras and civilian witnesses record events on their cell phones. Emerging technology has also changed punishment options. The participants in this group share their observations regarding changes in "law, practice, and culture" that have created new challenges and opportunities for attorneys in the criminal justice system who struggle to achieve justice for victims and defendants alike.

3:30 PM - Discussion Group: From the Deans' Suite: A Candid Discussion about Tuition, Loans, Repayment, and Counseling

This is a discussion group similar to that in the last several years dealing candidly with hot topics around legal education. The specific topics depend on the "hot issues" of the moment but include a discussion of the morning session regarding student loans, tuition, discounting, and what the last decade tells us about the next decade. The group also considers likely financial issues that will arise in the next decade for law schools.

8:00 AM - West Academic Golf Tournament

12:00 PM

9:30 AM - WORKSHOP ON CRIMINAL JUSTICE

12:00 PM Discussion Group: Incorporating Developments in Forensic Science and Technology into the Criminal Justice System

Science and technology increasingly impact criminal law and procedure. Pretrial, exclusive prosecutorial access to forensic labs compounds discovery and ethical questions of disclosure. Post-conviction, wrongful convictions are increasingly reversed for faulty forensic testimony and debunked scientific theories, raising new questions in particular on the reliability of numerous forensic disciplines. Other questions focus on the use of algorithms in setting bail, managing probation and parole, and sentencing, as well as various surveillance methods. Further, new uses of science and technology cause us to wrestle with the traditional understanding of Fourth Amendment reasonableness. This discussion group examines and assesses varying approaches to these and similar problems across wide-ranging subfields within the criminal justice system.

Wednesday, August 2, 2017 Schedule of Events

10:00 AM - NEW SCHOLARS WORKSHOP

12:00 PM Getting Out There

Attending, participating in, and creating conferences and workshops are activities that every new law professor is well advised to do. But accessing these opportunities, choosing wisely among them, and making the most of participation are goals easier said than done. Panelists will discuss topics including the advantages to "getting out there," what opportunities to prioritize, whether and how to write for conferences, and whether and how to design panels, workshops, or conferences of your own. Panelists will also discuss how newer professors can use the SEALS Conference to design panels, discussion groups, and workshops to accomplish their participation goals.

Moderators: Professor Amy Hess, The University of Tennessee College of Law

Speakers: Professor Mary Anne Franks, University of Miami School of Law; Professor Llezlie Coleman, American University, Washington College of Law; Professor Sally Brown Richardson, Tulane University Law School; Professor Laurent Sacharoff, University of Arkansas School of Law

12:00 PM - New Scholars Luncheon 1:00 PM (Sponsored by Wolters Kluwer)

1:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON TEACHING

2:45 PM Teaching Fundamentals I : Designing an Effective Law School Course or Seminar

The panelists, all experienced and excellent course designers, discuss syllabus formation, the selection of course materials, coverage issues, and more. Each panelist then leads a breakout group to discuss these issues with participants in depth in a roundtable format.

Moderators: Professor Stephanie Ledesma, Texas Southern University, Thurgood Marshall School of Law

Speakers: Professor Howard Katz, Duquesne University School of Law; Professor Benjamin Madison, Regent University School of Law; Professor Nancy Soonpaa, Texas Tech University School of Law; Professor Laurie Zimet, University of California Hastings College of the Law

1:00 PM - PROSPECTIVE LAW TEACHERS WORKSHOP

2:45 PM CV Review Sessions

Candidates will have their curriculum vitae reviewed by experienced academics to help prepare candidates for the teaching market. (Note: Candidates have been pre-selected prior to the conference as part of a competitive application process. If you are interested in the workshop, please contact one of the coordinators for more information.)

Wednesday, August 2, 2017 Schedule of Events

1:00 PM - The Future of Independent Agencies and Consumer Protection after PHH Corp. v. CFPB 2:45 PM

To the surprise of many, PHH Corp. v. CFPB declared the single-head management structure of the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau to be unconstitutional. On May 24, 2017, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia conducted a rehearing of the case en banc. The case raises important and novel issues concerning the role of independent agencies in the administrative state. This panel addresses the future of independent agencies from an administrative and constitutional perspective, and whether the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau can (and should) continue to exist.

Moderators: Professor Rebecca Morgan, Stetson University College of Law

Speakers: Professor Mark Bauer, Stetson University College of Law; Professor Darren Bush, University of Houston Law Center; Professor Creola Johnson, The Ohio State University, Moritz College of Law; Professor Philip Pucillo, Michigan State University College of Law; Professor Caprice Roberts, Savannah Law School

1:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON ELECTRONIC EDUCATION 2:45 PM Discussion Group: Cool Tools - From the Electronic Education Committee

Electronic education is more than synchronous and asynchronous courses. It is also Cool Tool technology, technology that can be used in face-to-face classrooms, online classrooms, meetings, our offices (home and school) -- virtually anywhere. Discussants present five-minute live and/or recorded Cool Tool demonstrations followed by discussion of the tool and its uses in legal education. Discussants identify sources for the demonstrated Cool Tools and provide vendor information and an assessment of value, cost, ease of use and general usefulness. Takeaways from this program include a list of practical and helpful technologies and strategies for effectively integrating these technologies into our lives as educators.

Moderators: Professor Greg Brandes, Concord Law School

Discussants: Professor Susan Franck, American University, Washington College of Law; Professor Billie Jo Kaufman, American University, Washington College of Law; Professor Korin Munsterman, Florida Coastal School of Law; Professor Ellen Podgor, Stetson University College of Law; Professor Charles Rose, Stetson University College of Law; Professor Brian Sites, Barry University, Dwayne O. ### 1:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

2:45 PM Discussion Group: President Trump and the First Amendment

Throughout the presidential election and in the early months of his presidency, President Donald Trump sparked debate about his commitment to First Amendment values. Supporters and critics have debated the ways in which the administration's policies—and the President's own statements—affect freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and religious freedoms in the United States. This discussion group explores those questions, examining actions taken and signals sent by the Trump administration in each of these areas. Scholars whose research focuses on the protection of speech, press, and religion will reflect upon the first six months of the Trump presidency, investigate the strength of Trump's commitment to each of these freedoms, and discuss the interrelationships between and among these First Amendment developments.

Moderators: Professor RonNell A. Jones, The University of Utah S.J. Quinney College of Law

Discussants: Professor Kathleen A. Brady, Emory University School of Law; Professor Michael Dimino, Widener University Commonwealth Law School; Professor Lili Levy, University of Miami School of Law; Dean Lyrrisa Lidsky, University of Missouri School of Law; Professor William Marshall, University of North Carolina School of Law; Professor Elizabeth Sepper, Washington University School of Law; Professor Alexander Tsesis, Loyola University Chicago School of Law; Professor Russell Weaver, University of Louisville, Louis D. Brandeis School of Law; Professor Christina Wells, University of Missouri School of Law

1:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON PROPERTY

2:45 PM Property and Protest

Protests often run against established property regimes, whether they are private property rights, zoning and ordinance enforcement by cities, or claims for property. This creates internal structural conflicts since many protests draw on the location as a substantive choice for what the group intends to say. While courts have regularly found that place restrictions do not impact constitutional limitations of speech where reasonable, the conflict created often requires extra-legal engagement other than regulating on the basis of entitlement. This panel presents papers around the question of protest as it impacts property claims.

1:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON PUBLISHING

2:45 PM Professor Perspectives on Publishing Books

Increasingly, law professors also publish casebooks, treatises, monographs in the law, and books for popular consumption. This panel of published authors considers the path from idea and pitch to publication and marketing. Their published works range from the traditional to the innovative and from casebooks to popular culture books. Published works include criminal law, remedies, hip hop and the law, sports law, legal practice, and jurisprudence. The authors explore how to formulate a plan, handle simultaneous submissions, draft a cover letter as a marketing document, pitch a book deal with sample content, and ultimately navigate the painstaking process of bringing a book vision into reality. If they had it to do all over again, what might they do differently?

Moderators: Professor Thomas Crocker, University of South Carolina School of Law

3:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON TEACHING

5:30 PM Discussion Group: Teaching Fundamentals II--Classroom Teaching

The participants, all dedicated and excellent teachers, discuss their classroom teaching philosophies and methodologies, including Socratic, Discussion, Lecture, and Experiential Learning. The participants also talk about dealing with newer generations of students, managing time, "flipping the classroom," covering the material, teaching respect, and incorporating professionalism and cultural awareness in the classroom as well as other subjects. This group focuses on nuts and bolts and also pursues broader issues such as teaching philosophy.

3:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON TRUSTS AND ESTATES

5:30 PM Research Inside and Outside of the Trusts and Estates Paradigm

Much of trusts and estates scholarship has focused on the development of doctrine within the field itself. This discussion group explores scholarship that is expanding the ways of studying trusts and estates and related doctrines. Specifically, the discussion group addresses new research that uses trusts and estates concepts in other areas of the law, including Elder Law, Family Law, Property, and Professional Responsibility, and that brings other areas of the law and various methodologies (such as the use of empirical evidence) into trusts and estates scholarship.

3:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON FAMILY LAW

5:30 PM Discussion Group: Hot Topics in Teaching Family Law: Triggers, Transgender, and Technology

Family law courses cover a range of potentially controversial topics. This discussion group focuses on some of the newest areas presenting challenges to classroom conversation. For example, participants will address topics ranging from whether and how to use trigger warnings in the classroom, how to be inclusive of transgender concerns and identities, and how technology affects emerging topic areas such as cyberviolence and e-discovery.

Moderators: Professor Naomi Schoenbaum, The George Washington University Law School

Discussants: Professor Brad Colbert, Mitchell Hamline School of Law; Professor Martha Ertman, University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law; Professor Mary Anne Franks, University of Miami School of Law; Professor Joanna Grossman, SMU Dedman School of Law; Professor Vivian Hamilton, William & Mary Marshall-Wythe School of Law; Professor Meredith Harbach, University of Richmond School of Law; Professor Laurie Kohn, The George Washington University Law School; Mr. Shannon Minter, Legal Director of the National Center for Lesbian Rights; Professor Claire Donohue Prono, American University, Washington College of Law; Dean Laura Rosenbury, University of Florida Fredric G. ### 3:00 PM - Exploring the Future of Food

5:30 PM

Food is a fundamental need and over the past decade food law has emerged as an increasingly important field within the legal academy. The regulation, production, distribution, and consumption of food impact multiple facets of human life and accordingly present many opportunities and challenges. Panelists bring different perspectives to bear on the critically important questions of how the law has shaped and maintained current food systems and how it can be marshaled to create better systems for the future.

3:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT LAW

6:00 PM

Discussion Group: Trends and Developments in Anti-Retaliation Law

This discussion group focuses on the law surrounding anti-retaliation provisions across the labor and employment law field. In August 2016, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) issued an "Enforcement Guidance on Retaliation and Related Issues." According to that guidance, the percentage of charges alleging retaliation has "essentially doubled since 1998" and retaliation is now the most "frequently alleged basis of discrimination in all sectors." This discussion group involves a broad exploration of several issues related to anti-retaliation provisions, including: what laws, procedures, and mechanisms can best work to eradicate retaliation; the requirement that opposition conduct must be based on a reasonable belief that the employer engaged in an unlawful employment practice; third-party retaliation; retaliatory harassment; commentary on the new EEOC guidance; and other timely topics.

3:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON EDUCATION LAW

6:00 PM Student Discipline, School Surveillance, and Racial Disparities: A Call for Legal Reform

This panel focuses on legal proposals to reform current approaches to monitoring and disciplining students, which result in profound racial inequalities and are detrimental to our youth, their families, and our nation. The panel addresses the connection between school quality and school discipline, the harms that innocent bystanders suffer as a result of overly punitive discipline policies, the role that implicit racial bias plays in student monitoring and student discipline decisions, and alternative educational schools and programs. The legal changes panelists propose will create more just and inclusive education environments for all students and a more effective educational system.

3:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION

6:00 PM Discussion Group: Discussions in Dispute Resolution - Arbitration

In light of dispute resolution's existence as a serious field of academic study for approximately 40 years, this discussion group constitutes both a celebration of the dispute resolution field's foundational writings and a reflection of what made these pieces so important. This discussion group is part of a larger book project, entitled Discussions in Dispute Resolution, where the foundational writings in the field's primary segments -- dispute resolution policy, negotiation, mediation, and arbitration -- are the subject of commentary. This discussion group focuses on arbitration and serves as an opportunity to convene book participants writing on that topic to share their respective reflections and observations and to advise, engage, and comment on their co-contributors' draft commentaries.

9:00 AM - WORKSHOP ON CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

12:00 PM Discussion Group: Reforming the Presidential Nomination Process

This panel discusses the nature of the presidential nomination process and how it might be changed, improved, or reformed. Presidential candidates are winnowed through party primaries, and this winnowing process is controlled by the two major political parties, receiving little influence from ordinary voters and citizens. The timing of our presidential primaries, how our party primaries are conducted, how party convention delegates are chosen, and how the votes of delegates are counted are all issues that parties decide on their own. This panel examines the presidential nomination process, how it unfolds, the role that political parties play in it, and how American citizens might have more of an influence over it going forward.

9:00 AM - 12:00 PM Discussion Group: Teaching Environmental Law and Climate Change in the Post-Trump World

Candidate Trump called climate change a hoax and promised to dramatically reduce environmental regulations. This discussion group explores how these promises translate into changed environmental policy. The specific topics are influenced by events between the inauguration and the conference and may include the fate of the Clean Air Plan, the U.S. role in global climate change mitigation (including withdrawal from the Paris Accord), changes in administrative law, and the role of law professors in preserving environmental values.

9:30 AM - 12:00 PM WORKSHOP ON LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT LAW Discussion Group: Employment Law in the Trump Era

The election of Donald Trump means the possibility of major changes in employment policy. President-Elect Trump promised to repeal Obamacare, strengthen enforcement of work authorization laws, annul administrative and executive actions regarding immigration and wage and hour standards, appoint religiously conservative Justices, and reduce the size of the federal government. President-Elect Trump can be expected to make management-friendly appointments to the National Labor Relations Board, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the Occupational Safety & Health Review Commission. Republicans have promised to enact a National Right to Work Act. Some of the Obama Administration's extensions of employment discrimination law in favor of LGBT rights may be in jeopardy. What are the prospects and practical significance of these changes for employment law practice and teaching over the next four years?

9:30 AM - 12:00 PM WORKSHOP ON TEACHING Discussion Group: Building on Best Practices for Outcomes and Assessment

As law schools work to implement ABA standards requiring learning outcomes and assessment for students, faculty members may need to adapt their syllabi and teaching methods. How can law school faculty members meet these requirements and maintain tried and true methods? Do the new accreditation standards require reworking of extant methods, and if not, how do faculty members avoid compliance simply for its own sake? This discussion group focuses on these questions and others, including how to incorporate the use of outcomes and assessments in the teaching of not only doctrine but also skills and values, such as cross-culturalism and social justice.

10:15 AM - WORKSHOP ON ELECTRONIC EDUCATION

12:00 PM Learning Management Systems - What are they? How do they work? Why do I care?

Today's teachers, whether teaching face-to-face, online or in a blended course, must administer, document, track, report, deliver and assess students interaction with course content. Most, if not all, faculty members use a Learning Management System (LMS) to support all of these tasks. What LMS are you using? Is it giving you what you need? Are you maximizing its capabilities? Our panelists are experts in Learning Management Systems. For today's most frequently used systems, TWEN, Blackboard, Canvass and BrightSpace (formerly D2L) they offer strategies, tips, and tricks as well as specifics for every style of teaching.

Moderators: Professor Sally Wise, University of Miami School of Law

Speakers: Professor Billie Jo Kaufman, American University, Washington College of Law; Professor Korin Munsterman, Florida Coastal School of Law; Professor Brian Sites, Barry University, Dwayne O. Andreas School of Law; Professor Rebecca Trammell, Stetson University College of Law

10:15 AM - Diversity and Inclusion: Consideration of Ideological Diversity in Law School Hiring and Admissions?

12:00 PM

In recent years, most universities and law schools have moved to increase and enhance the level of "diversity" on their faculties. However, much of the emphasis has been focused on diversity factors like race, sex and sexual orientation. Studies have shown that many faculties are not ideologically diverse. This panel focuses on whether law schools should strive to become more ideologically diverse and recruit faculty, staff and students who enhance ideological diversity.

10:15 AM - 12:00 PM Best Practices for Preventing and Responding to Sexual Assault and Violence

Universities and colleges across the country are wrestling with how to best address incidences of sexual assault and violence. The 2011 Dear Colleague Letter from the Department of Education Office for Civil Rights that indicated that sexual assault and violence fall under Title IX raised awareness of the importance of an effective institutional response to these issues. This panel discusses best practices for preventing and responding to sexual assault and violence. Participants draw upon their research and scholarship on these issues as well as their work at their institutions to make campuses safe and fair for all students.

10:30 AM - 11:45 AM MINDFULNESS IN LAW SCHOOLS CONFERENCE

Teaching Mindfulness in Law Schools

This panel explores the many different ways law school faculty and administrators have begun to incorporate mindfulness into their classes, programs, and curriculums, including mindful minutes at the beginning of a traditional law class, more substantive integration into courses themselves, full courses on mindfulness, as well as student success and other programs beyond the traditional curriculum. It also offers practical suggestions on different training models, how to incorporate mindfulness into existing legal education structures, and how to work effectively with faculty, administrators, and others when introducing mindfulness into the law school environment.

Moderators: Professor Emily Zimmerman, Drexel University Thomas R. Kline School of Law

Speakers: Professor Teresa Brostoff, University of Pittsburgh School of Law; Professor Clark Freshman, University of California Hastings College of the Law; Professor Katerina Lewinbuk, South Texas College of Law Houston; Professor Susan Wawrose, University of Dayton School of Law

10:30 AM - 12:00 PM Free Speech, Privacy and Transparency in a Digital Era

This panel focuses on the intersections and trade-offs between and among free speech, privacy and governmental transparency. In recent decades, there has been a movement towards increasing governmental openness and transparency. This movement has been aided and enhanced by free speech and open ideas. However, at the same time, there is a potential risk to privacy. The Speakers come from diverse backgrounds with differing takes on the subject.

Defending the Public's Enemy: The Journey of Ramsey Clark

In his remarkable forthcoming book, Defending the Public's Enemy: The Journey of Ramsey Clark, Lonnie Brown tells the story of former USAG Ramsey Clark. During the 1960s in the Justice Department he oversaw the third Selma to Montgomery march, enforced school desegregation mandates, lashed out against police brutality, and protected militant black leaders, among many other things. Since then Clark has come to be known as a radical attorney, seemingly willing to undertake any cause or client including such jaw-dropping defendants as Saddam Hussein, Slobodan Milosevic, and Rodovan Karadzic. The panel consists of scholars who know Clark or his work and addresses both the book and Clark's remarkable legacy.

1:00 PM - Character and the Classroom

2:45 PM

This panel builds on a recent survey of more than 20,000 lawyers that highlights the importance of character for future attorneys. In addition to legal analysis and lawyering skills, new lawyers need instruction and practice building positive character traits. These traits include diligence, active listening, industry, integrity and attention to details. This panel explores the ways these skills can be developed in both legal research and writing and doctrinal classrooms. It also offers concrete lesson plans, practices, and rules that can be used to reinforce these important traits. Finally, this panel addresses limitations on attempts to help adult learners develop character.

Discussion Group: Students as Employees

In its recent Columbia University decision, the National Labor Relations Board once again concluded that graduate students, research assistants, and other students may be considered employees under the National Labor Relations Act, opening the door to unionization among graduate students at private universities and colleges around the nation. This discussion panel considers the possible implications of this decision, including how graduate student organizing may work in tandem with faculty organizing; comparing public and private sector graduate student unions; whether Columbia University will impact the classification of other potential student-employees, such as athletes; and others.

1:00 PM - NEW SCHOLARS WORKSHOP

2:45 PM Inside the Mind of the Outside Reviewer

In the promotion and tenure process, mentors stress to junior faculty the need to create a scholarly agenda, to find an original niche in their field, and to place their work well. However, what is not often discussed is one very important data point in the tenure decision, the external reviewer. This panel will discuss the role of the external reviewer in the tenure process, the expectations that external reviewers have, and the strategies that pre-tenure faculty can implement early on to succeed in this critical part of the tenure evaluation process.

1:00 PM - Early Trends and Prospects for Environmental Protection in the New Administration

2:45 PM

The attitudes and approaches of presidential administrations, and the identities of their top-level political appointees, can impact the effectiveness of federal regulatory agencies. At the EPA, for example, the quantity and quality of new regulations, as well as the extent of enforcement of existing requirements, have varied dramatically over time. The high productivity of the Nixon and Carter presidencies -- and most of the George H.W. Bush and Bill Clinton years -- contrasts sharply with the Ronald Reagan and G.W. Bush presidencies. This panel examines the trends in environmental protection emerging in the new administration's transition from the Obama terms and considers the medium term and the long run in this crucial area of public policy.

1:45 PM - MINDFULNESS IN LAW SCHOOLS CONFERENCE

3:00 PM Using Mindfulness to Enhance Scholarship and Service

This panel explores how mindfulness can help law professors and administrators in their professional lives beyond teaching and working with students. Can mindfulness help us as academics to find our scholarly voices, hone our messages, or even choose our topics? Similarly, can it facilitate our effectiveness, satisfaction and well-being as we contribute to the administrative life of the law school? Panelists will set the stage for what we expect to be a highly interactive discussion that draws broadly on the experiences of audience members as well as panelists.

3:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON BUSINESS LAW
5:30 PM Discussion Group: Entrepreneurship Initiatives in Poor Communities: Economic Inclusion or Exclusion?

This discussion group addresses whether governmental and non-governmental initiatives that encourage entrepreneurship in low-income communities are effective means of including these communities in wealth creation that is more typical of middle- and high-income communities. Participants will reflect on entrepreneurship relevant to urban and rural low-income communities in the United States, including small business incubators, public-private partnerships, university initiatives, municipal bankruptcies, and securities crowdfunding. Participants also address: (1) whether start-up and peer-to-peer business models foster a business culture that prioritizes hourly employment over salaried jobs that carry employee benefits (contributing to the exclusion of low-income workers from participation in wealth creation); (2) whether social entrepreneurship provides a more inclusive option for low-income founders; and (3) whether internet financings democratize capital investment.

3:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION

6:00 PM Discussion Group: Discussions in Dispute Resolution - Dispute Resolution Policy

In light of dispute resolution's existence as a serious field of academic study for approximately 40 years, this discussion group constitutes both a celebration of the dispute resolution field's foundational writings and a reflection of what made these pieces so important. This discussion group is part of a larger book project, entitled Discussions in Dispute Resolution, where the foundational writings in the field's primary segments -- dispute resolution policy, negotiation, mediation, and arbitration -- are the subject of commentary. This discussion group focuses on dispute resolution policy and serves as an opportunity to convene book participants writing on that topic to share their respective reflections and observations and to advise, engage, and comment on their co-contributors' draft commentaries.

6:00 PM Mindfulness for Student Success

There are many barriers to student success, including test-taking skills, personal life distractions, confidence, and a sense of direction. Among other things, mindfulness training can be helpful in focusing concentration, eliminating distractions, overcoming negative self-perceptions, and helping students understand what is important to them as lawyers and as people. This panel will review the literature on student success and demonstrate different ways that student success professionals have used mindfulness to help students overcome the barriers to their success.

3:00 PM - Discussion Group: The Future of LGBTQ Rights

6:00 PM

This broad discussion group addresses the future of LGBTQ rights post-Obama, particularly with a new U.S. Supreme Court justice and other federal judiciary confirmations. What are the legal and political consequences of anticipated backlash and rollbacks? We contemplate the implications of the likely move back to a state-by-state approach, much like the 1990s and early 2000s. We explore everything from trans rights to administrative protections, to family law, to Title VII. We also consider intersectionality of identities, tensions with heterosexuality norms, and advancement of LGBTQ rights within the rise of ruralism. We draw lessons from other civil rights movements in the face of continued oppressions to reexamine and reimagine our legal strategies going forward.

6:00 PM Discussion Group: Environmental Protection and the Green Economy

Changes in law, technology, and public opinion play pivotal roles in environmental protection and influence how businesses develop. This discussion group explores enforcement and responses of businesses and consumers to the Green Economy, opening an array of topics relating to the environment, and identifying challenges and opportunities in the areas of environment, energy, and natural resources law. The Green Economy includes everything from solar energy for home use to large-scale carbon dioxide capture and sequestration—from the development of electric cars and charging stations to renewable energy (including solar, wind, hydro, and methane collection). Obstacles to these projects include opportunity costs created by unpredictable assessments of rates of return and the need for community buy-in for sustainable projects.

1:30 PM - WORKSHOP ON TAX LAW

3:15 PM Issues in Individual Income Tax

This panel works through a variety of issues in the creation, implementation, and enforcement of the individual income tax. Papers address the possibility of a federal universal basic income, the way the tax code addresses funding for higher education, the relevance of the "Taxpayer Bill of Rights", tax enforcement and the income tax gap, and taxpayer reporting and penalties. Papers in this panel address both theoretical and practical matters raised by these topics.

Speakers: Professor Alice Abreu, Temple University, James E. Beasley School of Law; Professor Arthur Acevedo, The John Marshall Law School; Professor Bradley Borden, Brooklyn Law School; Professor Richard Greenstein, Temple University, James E. Beasley School of Law; Professor Jonathan Grossberg, American University, Washington College of Law; Professor Camilla Watson, University of Georgia School of Law

1:30 PM - Trademark Morality: The Cultural and Expressive Implications of Regulating Immoral and Offensive Trademarks

3:15 PM

There has been recent vociferous public and judicial debate at the intersection of trademark law and the First Amendment, caused by the disputes over the REDSKINS and THE SLANTS marks and the role of trademarks in modern society. The debate in the public sphere has created more heat than light. After lower courts reached opposite results, the U.S. Supreme Court granted cert to consider the constitutionality of the disparaging prohibition. Regardless of the result, this program brings together diverse scholarly approaches to address the mutating functions of trademarks as source identifiers, symbols of cultural discourse, and signifiers of perceived morality. It is an opportunity to discuss the tensions between morality and speech inherent in intellectual property.

1:30 PM - WORKSHOP ON COMMERCIAL AND CONSUMER LAW

3:15 PM The Changing Face of Consumer Protection

The economic crisis of 2008 had long-range and far-flung consequences, all of which damaged the financial stability of millions of Americans. Although the Great Recession has ended, financially fragile individuals and families now face new threats to prosperity, including shrinking city economies, a dearth of quality housing, decreased access to credit, and impediments to bankruptcy protections. This panel explores the ways in which consumer protection laws should respond to these new challenges.

1:30 PM - WORKSHOP ON LEGAL EDUCATION

3:15 PM Rubrics and Checklists and Frameworks – Oh My!

We know that writing promotes deep learning, but how can we incorporate writing projects into our courses without sacrificing coverage? And where will we find the time to provide meaningful feedback on student writing? It's easier -- and less time-consuming -- than you think. This panel/workshop is conducted in two parts. First, panelists explain how they incorporate writing into their classes and share the rubrics, checklists, and other evaluation tools that allow them to assess written work efficiently. Second, panelists will facilitate a hands-on workshop during which attendees will begin to develop a short writing project and design a feedback instrument that can be used in the classroom this year.

1:30 PM - WORKSHOP ON LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT LAW

3:15 PM Discussion Group: New and Existing Voices in Labor and Employment Law

This program is designed to give newer scholars and more established scholars, engaged in addressing legal concerns within the workplace, the opportunity to receive feedback on their draft papers from experienced workplace law scholars before the upcoming submission cycle. A Call for Papers describing the program in detail was generated separately. The organizers primarily sought submissions from labor and employment law scholars with five or fewer years of full-time teaching experience (not counting the 2016-17 academic year) but also considered drafts from existing labor and employment scholars regardless of experience.

6:00 PM Discussion Group: Pedagogy and Assessments in Tax Courses

Assessing student learning in tax courses can be rather taxing. This discussion group aims to bring together professors who teach any tax course to share best practices in terms of teaching and learning. Topics include final exams and midterms, written projects, simulations, and other criteria professors use to assess student performance. Professors who have already developed "learning outcomes" consistent with ABA standards for specific tax courses will be encouraged to share them. The scope of the discussion group is intentionally broad and participants may touch upon any matter related to teaching or assessment in a law school tax course.

The Stanford University Design School is known for using a five-step iterative process to create new solutions to a wide variety of issues. Design-driven innovation has five main steps – empathize, define, ideate, prototype, and test. Applying these steps to legal education can create some very interesting possibilities. This session engages participants in design thinking exercises in various aspects of legal education, including assessment, teaching innovation, mapping the curriculum, scholarship, admissions, and more.

3:30 PM - WORKSHOP ON NATIONAL SECURITY LAW

6:30 PM Discussion Group: Trump's Executive Actions on Immigration: Travel Ban, Extreme Vetting, Border Surveillance, and Mass Deportation

This discussion group explores the constitutionality and legality of the current administration's executive actions on immigration. In the first week of his presidency, President Trump signed three Executive Orders that addressed immigration policy: "Border Security and Immigration Enforcement Improvements"; "Enhancing Public Safety in the Interior of the United States"; and "Protecting the Nation from Foreign Terrorist Entry into the United States." The Travel Ban Executive Order was later revised and reissued in response to ongoing litigation claiming the order violates the Establishment Clause, Equal Protection, and Due Process. The discussion group examines the current landscape of litigation surrounding these orders as well as the subsequent implementation of administration policies related to these orders.

3:30 PM - Discussion Group: Digital Pressures in Intellectual Property Law

6:30 PM Digitization is an expanding phenomenon. Software, music, movies, news, and books are distributed in digital form. Key societal experiences -- relationships, shopping, and communication, for example -- increasingly take place online. Technologies such as 3D printing further blur the line between the tangible and digital worlds. This discussion group explores the ways that digitization, considered broadly, has affected various intellectual property laws in their own right as well as in intersections with other laws and systems.

3:30 PM - 6:30 PM    Discussion Group: Educating Citizens on Rulemaking, Administrative Hearings and Other Administrative Procedures

Understanding how government works is an important part of citizenship. Whenever there is a new Administration or a new regulation is issued there can be confusion or inaccurate descriptions of basic administrative law processes. Such mischaracterizations threaten the public's understanding of democratic legitimacy rulemaking and undermine the ability of all current and future leaders to implement their preferred policies. This discussion group addresses how members of the academy and government can educate the public about administrative law processes and protections, divorced of the policies themselves.

10:15 AM - 12:00 PM The Past & Future Role of Organized Religion in the Development of International Law

From Mohammed to Aquinas, Grotius to Francis, there has long been an overlap of organized religious beliefs and the development of international law. Potentially more than any other field of law, international law's tradition is firmly rooted in natural law. Perhaps this was because prior to the development of permanent worldwide leadership organizations like the United Nations, an organized religion was the only entity that claimed a higher normative authority than the state. While the power of organized religion has been greatly reduced in the modern era, its influence is still significant. This panel evaluates the current role of organized religion in the continued development of international law.

10:15 AM - INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY LAW

12:00 PM Intellectual Property and the Administrative State

This panel situates ongoing debates over intellectual property law and policy within the modern administrative state. Although patent, trademark, and copyright law are all administered in agencies, the conduct of these agencies differs in important respects from the main body of administrative law and process. Intellectual property exceptionalism in administrative law has been the focus of growing academic criticism as well as judicial and legislative reform, particularly over the last twenty years. Recent developments across intellectual property doctrine make a systematic reevaluation of the intellectual property-administrative law interface all the more timely. This panel addresses questions at that intersection from each of the main bodies of intellectual property law.

This panel explores the changing landscape of admission to the practice of law both across the United States and abroad. The number of U.S. states that allow access to the practice of law for foreign-educated lawyers continues to increase. Most SEALS and ABA law schools now have LL.M. programs designed to prepare foreign law graduates for these U.S. bar exams. This panel explores the merits of this trend and discusses its future. As part of the SEALS partnership with the European Law Faculties Association (ELFA), the panel also includes a representative from that organization to discuss whether this trend is also occurring in Europe.

WORKSHOP ON EMPLOYMENT AND LABOR LAW

Discussion Group: Trends and Tension Between Religious Freedom and Workplace Protections and Benefits

Do some employers have a religious right not to follow workplace laws? Religious freedom statutes are debated and enacted in states, and the federal Religious Freedom Restoration Act is urged as a limit on enforcement of Title VII, the Fair Labor Standards Act, and the National Labor Relations Act, among other laws, because some corporations are religious "persons" who should not have to follow laws that burden their beliefs or practices. Religious freedom has also heated up because federal anti-sex discrimination statutes are being used to prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identities, and challenges to other statutes are growing as well. This discussion group addresses these trends, the clashes they are producing, and future directions.

1:00 PM - Discussion Group: Book Projects and Publication in Election Law

2:45 PM

As the recent election cycle has shown, issues surrounding election law remain germane to the public concerning the American political process. Election law, as a field, has continued to address these issues through not only scholarship and public intellectual engagement, but also through historical and contemporary book-length works that have examined key cases and issues in the field. This discussion group explores the development of this branch of book-length election law scholarship and provide an opportunity for election law scholars currently working on book-length projects to discuss their current work.

This panel addresses the choice legal educators face when polarizing current events overlap with course coverage. It is inspired by Professor Patricia Leary's response to students who opposed her Black Lives Matter t-shirt. First, the panel considers whether it is ever appropriate to steer classroom discussion away from assigned readings. Second, it examines the difficulties such discussions present for professors who are members of groups underrepresented in legal academia. Third, each panelist discusses his or her decision regarding the inclusion of potentially controversial material and use of trigger warnings. The discussion will reference the doctrinal areas in which the panelists teach, including Business Organizations, Civil Procedure, Civil Rights Litigation, Contracts, Copyright Law, International Law, and Professional Responsibility.

2:45 PM Discussion Group: Sustainability Cross-Disciplinarity: Collaborating Across Colleges and Campuses

There are a growing number of "sustainability" programs on campuses in the United States and abroad. Sustainability generally has not yet evolved into a separate academic discipline: courses related to the topic may be associated with "centers" and offered by various academic disciplines. Whether one characterizes sustainability as a cross-, meta-, or transdisciplinary topic or as a delta-science, its very conception has been contested and shaped by theories and methods from fields as diverse as biology, engineering, ecology, economics, philosophy, and law. How can law schools benefit from the sustainability research and reaching of scholars in other departments? What kinds of cross-disciplinary initiatives are promoting sustainability? This discussion group seeks to connect legal scholars from different disciplines to exchange ideas, compare notes, and discuss future opportunities.

1:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON LEGAL EDUCATION

2:45 PM Pursuing Full Citizenship in the Legal Academy

This panel addresses hierarchies in legal education that send conflicting messages to students and the profession. While most tenured faculty members are men, most contract faculty members are women. The vast majority of faculty is white, with more diversity in tenured positions. New positions, such as those in academic support, may include teaching but no faculty status. As practice-readiness and social justice become more important to law schools, we must address otherness within our ranks without resistance. This panel addresses the impact of hierarchies on women and faculty of color, the negative message to students, and the extent to which we perpetuate hierarchies in the profession. The SEALS conference is an ideal venue for this discussion as it brings together diverse faculty and viewpoints.

1:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON INTERNATIONAL & COMPARATIVE LAW

2:45 PM Crises of Nonintervention: The Gordian Knot of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the Gushing Wound of Syria

The threat to international peace and security posed by North Korea's nuclear and ballistic missile capabilities and the human rights travesties in the country (exacerbated by United Nations permanent member involvement that prevents the Security Council from applying a consistent policy) are contributing to a "perfect storm" of calamity. Meanwhile, the Syrian civil war is a gushing wound of civilian casualties and international terrorism that is causing most of Europe to struggle with a wave of refugees. This panel focuses on how to cut this Gordian knot and bandage this wound through application of law and changes in policy. Panelists will bring expertise in human rights, international law, and/or diplomatic policy to bear on these pressing questions.

3:00 PM - Discussion Group: Buyouts and Retirements: What to Consider?

5:30 PM

This discussion group examines buyouts and retirements from the perspective of those who took buyouts, those who decided not to take them, those who have recently retired, and those who have implemented buyouts and retirements at their schools. The session is designed to examine the considerations used in deciding whether to take a voluntary buyout, phased retirement, or an immediate retirement. It looks at a number of key questions. How do you plan for leaving the academy? What aspects of retirement did you fail to anticipate? What considerations should you have in deciding whether to take a buyout? What considerations should a dean have in handling buyouts with faculty members? What role can retired faculty members have as continuing members of the law school community?

3:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON CIVIL PROCEDURE

6:00 PM Discussion Group: The Inherent Characteristics of Jurisdiction

In Jurisdiction and Its Effects, 105 Geo. L.J. __ (2017), Professor Scott Dodson challenges traditional conceptions of jurisdiction, and proposes that jurisdiction be reconceived as a means of determining the appropriate forum for adjudicating a dispute when more than one forum might be available. Using that article as a springboard, this discussion group addresses fundamental questions concerning the nature of jurisdiction. For example, are certain norms inherently jurisdictional, or do they become jurisdictional solely because a legislative or judicial body so labels them? Does a jurisdictional norm have inherent qualities (like nonwaivability)? Do certain consequences necessarily flow from the violation of a jurisdictional norm, or may they be adjusted to fit the norm at issue?

3:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON LEGAL EDUCATION

6:00 PM Discussion Group: Responding to the Needs of Evening Students: The Night Owl Clinician

Legal education's emphasis on experiential education comes with an obligation: parity between day and evening course offerings. While many live-client experiences and externships are not available after the regular workday, all students need the bridge from non-legal professional to attorney that clinics provide. The struggles of clinic are magnified in the evening. How do we teach everything we need to teach? How do we balance client and pedagogical needs when students have so many competing obligations? This group will discuss the challenges of and best practices for building and teaching in evening clinics with an emphasis on building a community of evening clinicians, sharing ideas and solutions, and enriching the scholarly literature.

Sunday, August 6, 2017 Schedule of Events

3:00 PM - 6:00 PM     Discussion Group: The Law of National Security and Foreign Affairs in the Trump Administration

This discussion group addresses the key legal policy choices related to national security, war powers, and international relations that confronted President Trump upon taking office. It also addresses any new legal controversies generated by his administration during the first six months in office. The session incorporates debates regarding detainee treatment, treaty commitments, international law, surveillance authorities, issues at the intersection of immigration and national security law, law enforcement authorities, cyber security, and foreign influence operations.

Moderators: Professor Andrew Wright, Savannah Law School

Discussants: Professor Emily Berman, University of Houston Law Center; Professor Thomas Crocker, University of South Carolina School of Law; Professor Akram Faizer, Lincoln Memorial University Duncan School of Law; Professor Stewart Harris, Lincoln Memorial University Duncan School of Law; Professor Craig Jackson, Texas Southern University, Thurgood Marshall School of Law; Professor Chris Ogolla, Savannah Law School; Professor Melanie Reid, Lincoln Memorial University Duncan School of Law; Professor Milena Sterio, Cleveland State University, Cleveland-Marshall College of Law; Professor Stephen Vladeck, University of Texas School of Law

3:00 PM - 6:00 PM     WORKSHOP ON LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT LAW. Discussion Group: Intentionally Disparate? A Reflection on Recent Developments in Individual Disparate Treatment Law

In recent years, the U.S. Supreme Court and lower courts have been busily defining -- and redefining -- what constitutes intentional discrimination or disparate treatment in violation of Title VII in a variety of legal contexts, e.g., in religious, pregnancy, and race discrimination cases. This discussion group explores the developments in individual disparate treatment jurisprudence -- both substantively and procedurally -- as well as relevant guidance from the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. This dialogue pays special attention to recently decided cases: EEOC v. Abercrombie and Fitch, EEOC v. Catastrophe Management Solutions, and Young v. UPS.

9:00 AM - 12:00 PM Discussion Group: A Comparative Discussion & Analysis of Current Legal Issues

The purpose of this discussion group is to showcase the comparative method of legal analysis. As law schools become more focused on statistical data (such as bar passage rates) to protect rankings, there are fewer course offerings from the comparative field. This discussion group will introduce the audience to the merits of comparative analysis through a variety of topics, including Immigration Law; Rights in the Workplace; Election Law; Sexual Orientation and Gender Rights & the Family, Health Law, the Rule of Law in Developing Countries, and Intellectual Property Law.

9:00 AM - 12:00 PM WORKSHOP ON BUSINESS LAW

Discussion Group: Corporate and Financial Reform in the Trump Administration

The election of President Donald J. Trump, whose campaign was premised on his business acumen, will have significant implications for the financial industry. Will he govern as a Teddy Roosevelt-style economic populist, reinstate Glass-Steagall, and "break up the banks," as promised in his party's platform? Or, buoyed by G.O.P. majorities in Congress, will he govern as a conventional free-market conservative, keeping promises to "dismantle" Dodd-Frank and eliminate, or at least weaken, the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau? And how might President Trump's Supreme Court appointments impact the Roberts Court, already incredibly friendly to business interests? This discussion group analyzes the Trump Administration's approach to the financial industry during its first several months and considers the various paths forward.

9:00 AM - 12:00 PM     Discussion Group: Growing Cannabis Law: When Grass Becomes Cash
Cannabis (a/k/a marijuana, grass, pot, weed) law reforms are sprouting throughout the country. Many states now permit restricted medicinal or recreational use, possession, sale, cultivation, and transportation, creating a cash-crop business opportunity. Yet federal law still prohibits cannabis activities. If a state passes a law to decriminalize cannabis, however, the federal government permits it so as long as a state regulation system is in place. This discussion group explores the many facets of law relating to cannabis such as property, commercial, and criminal law. We examine vexing issues including state-federal conflicts and discriminatory effects as well as whether decriminalization promotes substance abuse. We also consider banking, tax, bankruptcy, intellectual property, insurance, international trade, interstate transportation, and antitrust implications.

9:00 AM - 12:00 PM     Discussion Group: Preventing and Reducing Stereotype Threat in Law School: Strategies and Recommendations
Stereotype threat occurs when an individual is concerned about confirming a stereotype about one's group. Research reveals that this can lead to underperformance by an individual. Research has confirmed strategies that can reduce or eliminate stereotype threat. This discussion group considers best practices to prevent, reduce or eliminate stereotype threat. Each discussant is presenting one strategy that faculty or students can use to prevent or reduce stereotype threat based upon research on this topic.

9:00 AM - 12:00 PM    WORKSHOP ON TAX LAW Discussion Group: Tax Policy

This discussion group is broadly concerned with issues of taxation. Discussants address individual income tax, corporate income tax, state & local tax, estate & gift tax, tax expenditure policy, international tax and entitlements. While these disparate themes might seem only loosely related, a common thread of the difficulties of balancing equity, simplicity, incentives and transparency runs through all of them. These scholars will grapple with the central tax topics of the day and address the looming concerns that must be dealt with by all levels of government.
