THE SOUTHEASTERN ASSOCIATION OF LAW SCHOOLS

A Message from the President

Dear SEALS Colleagues and Families,

I am delighted to welcome you to the 71st Annual Conference of the Southeastern Association of Law Schools (SEALS) at the Fort Lauderdale Marriott Harbor Beach Resort & Spa. Coming "home" to Fort Lauderdale is the very definition of SEALS. I started my career at Nova Southeastern University, Shepard Broad Law School and learned about the importance of SEALS while I was there – its programs, amazing friends and colleagues, and wonderful opportunities to engage with others about important substantive legal issues and the many changes and transitions in legal education. There are an infinite number of scholarship and teaching opportunities during this week including workshops, panels, discussion groups, luncheons, breaks, and receptions. Take advantage of as many as possible.

SEALS' amazing programming continues to include substantive panels that cover major legal issues, New Scholar's Workshops, Prospective Law Teachers' Workshop, Works in Progress, and, back by popular demand – Wellness. The diverse program format allows each attendee to listen, engage, discuss, and share best practices in teaching and any number of substantive topics. New scholars also have a real opportunity to learn from "master teachers." SEALS is noted for its diversity of members, thoughts, and opportunities to contribute to its success. The SEALS Conference is also designed for you to enjoy the area – this time Fort Lauderdale Beach – and its many activities: golf, tennis, swimming, walking on the beach, and the West Academic Skit.

I want to express my gratitude for the hard work by every single committee that makes SEALS function on a day-to-day basis and creates this great conference annually. SEALS offers its member schools and their faculty and administrative staff the opportunity to be "involved."

I also want to give accolades to the Board and its Executive Director. As a growing organization, the Board works tirelessly to insure the basic infrastructures are in place to conduct business and create an energized environment for the annual conference.

SEALS' small but dedicated staff work in the background to make sure conference registration, hotel needs, and memberships are handled seamlessly – all with that SEALS "can do" attitude.

We welcome new members Benjamin E. Cardozo School of Law, Yeshiva University, Wayne State University Law School, and Drexel University, Thomas R. Kline School of Law. The new member schools will host a joint reception so you can get to know new friends and colleagues.

Please make sure to visit the vendor exhibit area where you can get hands-on information about new casebooks, check out new software, or "sell" a book idea to one of the leading legal publishers right on site. Their steadfast support for breaks and receptions continue to create an environment to engage and learn.

A Message from the President Continued

We appreciate this year's sponsors - Carolina Academic Press, Lexis Nexis, Edward Elgar, West Academic, Wolters Kluwer, the Federalist Society, The National Institute for Trial Advocacy, iLaw: A BARBRI Company, and SEATGEN. In addition, the University of Kentucky College of Law, The University of West Virginia College of Law, and the Elon University School of Law will host the Deans' luncheon.

Special thanks to Nova Southeastern, Shepard Broad Law Center and American University who will host a special reception in honor of Billie Jo Kaufman and Gail Richmond for their long-term service to SEALS.

Do take advantage of every single opportunity. We promise you will learn something new, meet a new friend, and be reenergized as we kick-off the 2018-2019 academic year.

Regards,

Billie Jo Kaufman

Associate Dean for Library and Information Resources

Program Format Overview

The SEALS 2018 Annual Meeting brochure reflects the contributions of committees, resource teams, and individuals in proposing panel topics, securing speakers, moderators, mentors, and writing panel descriptions.

The SEALS 2018 Annual Meeting program includes a variety of program formats. The paragraphs below provide a brief description of each format. Unless otherwise indicated, every program is open to all SEALS attendees.

New Scholars Workshop

The New Scholars Workshop offers newer faculty members an opportunity to present, and receive feedback on, a work in progress. Over the course of the annual meeting, there will be six New Scholars Workshop sessions, each typically featuring a moderator and three or four speakers. Speakers are nominated by member schools, and each speaker is assigned a mentor, who is available to provide both pre-and post-presentation advice and commentary. Whenever possible, SEALS groups New Scholars Workshop panels thematically.

Prospective Law Teachers and Newer Law Teachers Workshops

In 2013, SEALS introduced two new features that built upon the success of its New Scholars Workshop. Given the features' success, SEALS is continuing them. The first is the Prospective Law Teachers Workshop (planned by the committee of the same name), which is aimed at assisting VAPs, Fellows, LLMS, and others interested in obtaining an entry-level academic position. This Workshop includes mock interviews, CV reviews, and various informational sessions to help attendees navigate the hiring market. The second is the Newer Law Teachers Workshop (planned by the Beginning and Newer Law Teachers Committee). These Workshops focus on issues that are of particular interest to newer law teachers, such as becoming a good classroom teacher, creating an effective course, methods of assessment, becoming a good scholar, and balancing service and scholarship.

Topical Workshops

Each year, SEALS offers interrelated events under a Workshop designation. Topics vary from year to year. Each Workshop has several events, which usually are scheduled for a single day but sometimes extend into a second day. When possible, Workshop sessions are scheduled to follow the same break schedule as other programs, so that attendees with multiple interests can attend a topical Workshop session in one time slot and a different topical Workshop (or some other event) in another time slot in the same day.

Discussion Groups

Participants in these events will focus on a particular topic or theme, as identified in the program. Although Discussion Groups are convened in different ways, in many cases, the participants prepare a short paper in advance of the annual meeting that the other participants read and comment upon at the session. These sessions are often longer than a traditional panel session to allow for a more in-depth, interactive discussion of the topic or theme. Discussion Groups may, but need not be, linked to Workshop programs. Those who convene Discussion Groups are encouraged to include participants selected from a call for papers to the SEALS membership. The program description for each session offers additional information about the composition of the event and the way in which the session will be conducted.

Panels

SEALS offers many "standalone" panels organized around a specific topic or theme. Topics and themes may be theoretical, doctrinal, pedagogical, service-oriented, law reform-oriented, or focused on other matters of interest to law school faculty members and administrators. Panels are moderated and typically consist of up to five featured speakers. In most cases, presenters are not required to submit or bring written drafts or copies of their related work.

Luncheons

The Call for Papers Luncheon features the work of faculty members whose papers were selected from among those submitted for review. This luncheon is ticketed and requires advance reservations. Please consider attending the Call for Papers lunch to support the winning scholars, but be sure to purchase your ticket in advance.

The New Scholars Luncheon, sponsored by Wolters Kluwer, offers a networking opportunity for newer faculty members. Those participating in the New Scholars Workshop and the Prospective Law Teachers Workshop are invited to attend but must purchase a ticket in advance.

The Steering Committee Luncheon is the meeting at which officers and committee chairs report on SEALS activities. It is also the forum at which institutional member schools elect new SEALS officers and other trustees. Each institutional and affiliate member school selects one individual to represent it at this luncheon (in addition to any faculty member who is already a trustee or committee chair).

The University of Kentucky College of Law, the University of West Virginia College of Law and the Elon University School of Law will sponsor a luncheon for all law school deans attending the conference.

West Academic is also sponsoring a luncheon that is open to all attendees. This year's luncheon focuses on features of CasebookPlus™. In addition Lexis Nexis is sponsoring a Writing Connections Workshop Luncheon as part of the Legal Writing Workshop.

Breaks and Receptions

Breaks between sessions (which are sponsored by Carolina Academic Press, Edward Elgar Publishing, the National Institute for Trial Advocacy, SEATGEN, West Academic, and Wolters Kluwer) and receptions (sponsored by American University, Washington College of Law, Carolina Academic Press, Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad Law Center, the Federalist Society, and West Academic) provide opportunities to interact with colleagues at other schools who share your teaching or scholarly interests and with representatives from publishers. Depending on the type and timing of the event, beverages or food may be available. A reception hosted by three of our newest members (Benjamin E. Cardozo School of Law, Yeshiva University; Wayne State University Law School; and Drexel University, Thomas R. Kline School of Law) introduces those schools to SEALS.

Thanks are owed to West Academic, which printed this program, the Day-At-A-Glance, and the Hospitality Guide.

9:00 AM - CRIMINAL LAW & PROCEDURE WORKSHOP

12:00 PM Discussion Group: The Future of the Death Penalty and Capital Litigation

This discussion group explores the future of the death penalty and capital litigation. Many had assumed victory was inevitable for Hillary Clinton in the 2016 election and, accordingly, discussion among practitioners and academics had already shifted to addressing what was likely to come next with regard to capital litigation and the death penalty with a more progressive U.S. Supreme Court. With the surprising election of Donald Trump as President and the impact of his nominee(s) on the direction of the Court, the discussion group focuses on the next fronts in terms of litigation and legislation in the area of the death penalty.

Moderator: Professor Jeffrey Usman, Belmont University College of Law

Discussants: Professor Valena Beety, West Virginia University College of Law; Professor William Berry, The University of Mississippi School of Law; Professor J. Richard Broughton, University of Detroit Mercy School of Law; Professor Russell Covey, Georgia State University College of Law; Professor Michael J.Z. Mannheimer, NKU Chase College of Law; Professor Patrick Metzger, Texas Tech University School of Law; Professor Susan Rozelle, Stetson University College of Law; Professor Kenneth Williams, South Texas College of Law Houston

9:30 AM - Discussion Group: The Future of Alternative Dispute Resolution Scholarship

12:00 PM

What does the future of Alternative Dispute Resolution in the academic setting, particularly in law schools, look like? With last year's retrospective on major scholarly works in the area completed, now is an ideal time to consider what the next generation of dispute resolution scholarship and scholars will be. This panel will convene senior and junior dispute resolution scholars and address: the future of ADR scholarship; the potential for "pure" ADR scholars in the academy; the future of dispute resolution centers in law schools. Given the pervasiveness of ADR across the legal setting today, this is the time to ask: what's next?

Moderator: Professor Rishi Batra, Texas Tech University School of Law

Discussants: Professor Erin Archerd, University of Detroit Mercy School of Law; Professor Lauren Newell, Ohio Northern University, Pettit College of Law; Professor Peter Reilly, Texas A&M University School of Law; Professor Richard Reuben, University of Missouri School of Law; Professor Rikiya Sakamoto, Nihon University College of Law

10:00 AM - Discussion Group: Law Libraries and Technology Disruption in Legal Information, 12:00 PM Legal Education, and the Practice of Law

Today's law students should be proficient with technologies currently used in legal practice, including cloud computing, eDiscovery, presentation, and information security applications. And there are emerging applied technologies such as cryptocurrencies, blockchain, 3D printing, and wearable technology with vast potential to be disruptive to future legal practice modalities. Law schools must produce graduates prepared to engage with these technologies. What is the role of the law library in educating future lawyers about emerging technologies? This discussion group focuses on law libraries as incubators of pedagogy for technology-related skills, as well as the academic law library as a physical space for law students to actually encounter some of these new technologies.

Moderator: Professor Mark Engsberg, Emory University School of Law

Discussants: Associate Dean Kathleen Brown, Charleston School of Law; Professor Whitney Curtis, Barry University, Dwayne O. Andreas School of Law; Ms. Lisa Davis, Florida International University College of Law; Professor Vícenç Feliú, Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad College of Law; Professor Faye Jones, University of Illinois College of Law; Professor Anne Klinefelter, University of North Carolina School of Law; Professor Kristina Niedringhaus, Georgia State University College of Law; Professor Caroline Osborne, Washington and Lee University School of Law; Professor Roger Skalbeck, University of Richmond School of Law; Professor Leslie Street, University of North Carolina School of Law; Professor Rebecca Trammell, Stetson University College of Law; Professor Carol Watson, University of Georgia School of Law

12:00 PM - Lunch (On your own) 1:00 PM

1:00 PM - GLOBAL OUTREACH WORKSHOP 2:45 PM Discussion Group: Seminar on Teaching Overseas

American law school faculty share an excellent reputation across the globe. As a result they are in high demand to visit internationally as guest instructors for both short courses (2-4 weeks) and full semesters. However, few Americans avail themselves of this opportunity because they are unsure of how to navigate the process of setting up the visit. This discussion group features experienced faculty who have all taught overseas. They will share their experiences, discuss the positives and challenges, and give clear guidance on how to find and set up the ideal visit.

Moderator: Professor Richard Meyer, Mississippi College School of Law

Discussants: Professor John Anderson, Mississippi College School of Law; Professor Fernando Colon-Navarro, Texas Southern University, Thurgood Marshall School of Law; Professor Thomas Folsom, Regent University School of Law; Dean Cynthia Fountaine, Southern Illinois University School of Law; Professor Vaughn James, Texas Tech University School of Law; Professor Mark David Maxwell, University of North Carolina School of Law; Professor Thomas Metzloff, Duke Law School; Professor Eang Ngov, Barry University, Dwayne O. ### 1:00 PM - Discussion Group: Controversial Remedies

2:45 PM

This discussion group explores controversial remedies in private and public law. Remedies in the headlines include nationwide injunctions against executive orders, global injunctions to protect intellectual property, expansive contempt orders, equitable remedies for the European right to be forgotten, criminal "restitution" to compensate victims, remedies for intangible harms such as data breaches, and civil restitution to disgorge unjust gains from opportunistic breaches of contract. Some discussants offer comparative approaches and historic examples to glean ideal paths for modern controversial remedies. We also examine the theoretical underpinnings that propel controversial remedies, underlying substantive areas, and defenses. Finally, we suggest reforms and limits to shape the law of remedies in ways that best serve the goals of the rights at stake.

Moderator: Professor Caprice Roberts, Savannah Law School

Discussants: Dr. Yehuda Adar, University of Haifa Faculty of Law (Israel); Professor Jonathan Cardi, Wake Forest University School of Law; Professor Vincent Cardi, West Virginia University College of Law; Professor Thomas Folsom, Regent University School of Law; Professor Andy Hessick, University of North Carolina School of Law; Professor Margaret Hu, Washington and Lee University School of Law; Professor Marco Jimenez, Stetson University College of Law; Professor Layne Keele, Faulkner University, Thomas Goode Jones School of Law; Professor Cortney Lollar, University of Kentucky College of Law; Professor Christopher Lund, Wayne State University Law School; Professor Michael Morley, Florida State University College of Law; Professor Christopher Roederer, University of Dayton School of Law; Professor Saurabh Vishnubhakat, Texas A&M University School of Law; Professor Russell Weaver, University of Louisville, Louis D. Brandeis School of Law; Professor Vanessa Zborek, Wake Forest University School of Law

1:00 PM - WORKSHOP ON MUNICIPAL DEBT

2:45 PM

Restructuring Puerto Rico's Debt: Implications for the Territory and Beyond

This panel addresses many of the issues that have arisen in connection with Puerto Rico's debt crisis, and the impact of these issues on other government fiscal crises, including treatment of municipal, sovereign, and territorial debt. Participants will discuss issues such as the enforceability of "bankruptcy remote" municipal debt issuances; reduced federal healthcare funding in Puerto Rico and possible comparisons to Medicaid reform elsewhere in the United States; government responses to crises, including domestic austerity measures; the extent to which Puerto Rico's distress (and the responses to it) will impact access to capital markets for other U.S. territories; and the effects of the creation of PROMESA, the legislative response to Puerto Rico's distress.

1:00 PM - Interpreting ABA Standards on Experiential Education

2:45 PM

This year marks the first graduating class to fulfill the new experiential requirements. Nationally, law schools are grappling with the new guidelines and vary in how to interpret the requirements and guidance memo. Some schools have set specific criteria and procedures to review each experiential course. Other schools have simply asked faculty members whether the course satisfies the requirement. This discussion delves into the current standards and includes a foreshadowing of new proposed guidelines of 303 and 304 to build context where ambiguity appears in the standards.

Moderator: Professor Kendall Kerew, Georgia State University College of Law

Speakers: Professor Peter Joy, Washington University School of Law; Professor Sue Kay, Vanderbilt Law School; Professor Kelly Terry, University of Arkansas at Little Rock, William H. Bowen School of Law

1:00 PM - CRIMINAL LAW & PROCEDURE WORKSHOP

2:45 PM

Capital Punishment: Good Idea or Bad Idea?

This panel explores the advantages and disadvantages of capital punishment and hopefully helps the audience decide whether capital punishment is a good idea or a bad idea. Are there good reasons for retaining the death penalty? Are there good reasons for abolishing the death penalty? How is the Supreme Court likely to resolve this question? The panelists address a variety of views on this subject. We are fortunate to have panelists on both sides of the question. It is our fondest hope that the audience will be able to assess the contrariety of views presented and perhaps sharpen their own thinking on the value or lack thereof of capital punishment.

1:00 PM - FIRST AMENDMENT WORKSHOP

2:45 PM "Fake News" in a Digital Era

In democracies, where the power to govern "depends on the consent of the governed," so-called "fake news" presents difficult issues. Fake news has the potential to mislead the electorate and encourage citizens to make decisions based on incorrect (or at least skewed) information. Although "fake news" has always existed, the Internet has exacerbated the problem by giving virtually everyone the possibility of distributing opinions and information. This panel will examine how different nations are dealing with the problem in light of their differing free speech traditions.

Moderator: Dean Thomas Galligan, Louisiana State University Paul M. Hebert Law Center

Speakers: Professor Andrey Chertvertkov, Moscow State University Faculty of Law (Russia); Professor Gaya Davidyan, Moscow State University Faculty of Law (Russia); Dean Jon Garon, Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad College of Law; Professor András Koltay, Pázmány Péter Catholic University, Faculty of Law & Political Sciences (Hungary); Professor Iris Nguyen-Duy, University of Adger (Norway) School of Business & Law; Professor Russell Weaver, University of Louisville, Louis D. Brandeis School of Law

2:45 PM - Break

3:00 PM (Sponsored by Edward Elgar Publishing)

3:00 PM - Experiential Learning in the Age of ABA Standard 303

5:00 PM

Experiential learning (learning-by-doing) isn't just for practitioners or even clinical and 3L trial advocacy students anymore. ABA Standards 303 and 304 have changed the landscape of law school classes around the country and experiential education can now be found in every semester. This panel looks at ways experiential learning is incorporated into not just clinics, but trial advocacy courses, evidence courses, and anything in between. Expect to come away with valuable pointers you can implement in your course as well as ideas to take to your fellow faculty.

3:00 PM - INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY WORKSHOP

5:00 PM Fostering Creative Expression

This panel explores intellectual property and related legal regimes such as art law that bear on the creative arts and industries. The panelists address a wide range of doctrinal and empirical issues, including markets for creativity, user-generated content and nontraditional expressive forms—including those popularized by the rise of the Internet—and legal doctrines aimed at preserving a robust public domain.

Moderator: Professor Stacey Lantagne, The University of Mississippi School of Law

Speakers: Professor Clark D. Asay, Brigham Young University, J. Reuben Clark Law School; Professor Brian Frye, University of Kentucky College of Law; Professor Andrew Gilden, Willamette University College of Law; Professor J. Janewa Osei-Tutu, Florida International University College of Law

3:00 PM - Discussion Group: Climate and the Environment in Year Two of the Trump Administration

5:30 PM

The Trump administration promises to profoundly roll back environmental regulation. This process is moving forward with attacks on the Clean Power Plan, the Waters of the United States rule, and many other environmental regulations. The leadership of science-based agencies is being shifted to more overtly political appointments, and conflicts of interest guidelines are being used to change the composition of science advisory boards. This discussion group looks at the current state of environmental law and the related administrative law issues, including the status of the Clean Power Plan and the resolution of judicial challenges to environmental rules.

Moderator: Professor Edward Richards, Louisiana State University Paul M. Hebert Law Center

Discussants: Professor Rebecca Bratspies, CUNY School of Law; Professor Caroline Cecot, George Mason University Antonin Scalia Law School; Professor Akram Faizer, Lincoln Memorial University Duncan School of Law; Professor Joel Mintz, Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad College of Law; Professor Felix Mormann, Texas A&M University School of Law; Professor Lee C. ### 3:00 PM - 5:30 PM     Discussion Group: Library Consolidation -- A Good Thing, or Absorption into the Borg?

With the ongoing interest in cost-saving measures, several academic institutions are considering merging law school and main campus library services and this discussion group addresses the issues and concerns over integration. The session examines existing case examples of integrated libraries and balances perceived savings against actual costs. Specifically, the discussion focuses on whether actual level of services maintained and efficiencies gained justify integration.

Moderator: Professor Vicenç Feliú, Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad College of Law
Discussants: Professor Brian Barnes, Loyola University New Orleans College of Law; Associate Dean Kathleen Brown, Charleston School of Law; Professor Helene Davis, University of Idaho College of Law; Professor Phillip Gragg, California Western School of Law; Professor Faye Jones, University of Illinois College of Law; Professor Billie Jo Kaufman, American University, Washington College of Law; Professor Deborah Schander, Vanderbilt Law School; Professor Rebecca Trammell, Stetson University College of Law; Professor Carol Watson, University of Georgia School of Law

3:00 PM - 6:00 PM     GLOBAL OUTREACH WORKSHOP Discussion Group: Teaching Health Law Overseas

Law schools in other countries have an increasing interest in learning about U.S. health law. This includes issues like bioethics, public health, and human subject research as well as regulatory and finance topics. This discussion group brings together health law professors who have taught these subjects overseas as well as those who have taught non-U.S. trained law students in LL.M. programs. The group shares experiences, materials, and best practices. The session also identifies opportunities for health law professors who want to explore options for teaching overseas.

Moderator: Professor Jennifer Bard, University of Cincinnati College of Law
Discussants: Professor Deleso A. #### 6:00 PM Discussion Group: The Boundaries of Modern Press Protection

In the early twentieth century, it was relatively easy to define the term "media." Although newspapers, as well as radio and television broadcasters would be labeled as "media." In a modern era, the definition is less clear. Do bloggers or other social media publishers qualify as the "media?" If so, or if not, what are the criteria by which to characterize someone? Investigation and reporting? Should editorial control be required? This discussion group examines these issues.

10:15 AM - FIRST AMENDMENT WORKSHOP

12:00 PM Defining Media in a Digital World

There is a long-running debate regarding the meaning of the term "media." Does the term apply only to traditional media outlets such as newspapers, and radio and television broadcasters? Or, alternatively, in a digital age, should the term be used to describe bloggers and other new age forms of communication. The panelists, who hold diverse views on this topic, explore the consequences of an expanded view of the term "media."

Moderator: Professor Enrique Guerra-Pujol, University of Central Florida College of Business

Speakers: Professor Ronnell Anderson Jones, The University of Utah S.J. Quinney College of Law; Dean Leonard Baynes, University of Houston Law Center; Dean Lyrissa Lidsky, University of Missouri School of Law; Professor Eric Segall, Georgia State University College of Law; Professor Rebecca Trammell, Stetson University College of Law

10:15 AM - WORKSHOP ON TEACHING

12:00 PM Teaching with Tweets: Leveraging Social Media & Instant Reaction Tools in the Law School Classroom

This panel provides an overview of practical ideas and innovations for deploying social media and other digital networking tools in the most pedagogically advantageous manner. The discussion includes coverage of Facebook, Twitter, and share other applications and tools that can greatly enhance the instructional experience for both students and faculty. Attendees are encouraged to bring web-enabled devices so that they can participate in real-time demonstrations. In addition to sharing practical ideas and tools, the session explores the pedagogical theories served by digital media, ways in which the use of social media and instant feedback tools can address diversity and equity challenges in the classroom, and ideas for overcoming the increasingly vexing challenge of digital distraction and focus attenuation in the classroom.

Moderator: Professor Anthony Varona, American University, Washington College of Law

Speakers: Professor Dustin Benham, Texas Tech University School of Law; Professor Kami Chavis, Wake Forest University School of Law; Professor Ezra Goldschlager, University of La Verne College of Law; Professor Korin Munsterman, Florida Coastal School of Law; Professor Michele Pistone, Villanova University School of Law

1:00 PM - LEGAL EDUCATION WORKSHOP

2:45 PM Bar Preparation Strategies for Law Professors and Academic Support Programs

This discussion group addresses the wide gulf between doctrinal classrooms and effective bar preparation for law students, and provides strategies to effectively bridge this gulf. The workshop combines salient learning theory on self-directed student learning with hands-on practical learning exercises that participants may bring back to their students and implement in a seamless fashion. All law professors and directors of academic support programs are welcome. This fast-paced and informative workshop addresses the kinds of learning issues that are salient to all members of the legal academy.

Moderator: Professor Melissa Essary, Campbell University, Norman Adrian Wiggins School of Law

Speakers: Professor Patrick Gould, Appalachian School of Law; Professor James McGrath, Texas A&M University School of Law; Professor Kirsha Trychta, West Virginia University College of Law

1:30 PM - Supreme Court and Legislative Update: Individual Rights

Moderator: Professor Ray Diamond, Louisiana State University Paul M. Hebert Law Center

Speakers: Professor Catherine Hancock, Tulane University Law School; Professor Margaret Hu, Washington and Lee University School of Law; Professor Christopher Lund, Wayne State University Law School; Professor Louis Virelli, Stetson University College of Law

1:30 PM - Creating a Movement in our Law Schools to Improve Well-Being in the Profession

3:15 PM

In August 2017, the National Task Force on Lawyer Well-Being published The Path to Lawyer Well-Being: Practical Recommendations for Positive Change. The new and comprehensive report is a powerful call to action in response to the high incidence of substance use and mental health concerns in the profession. This task force report includes some very specific recommendations for law schools as well as the regulators, bar associations and other stakeholders.

This panel provides an overview of the task force report and highlights concrete activities and programming for use in the legal academy. Panelists also highlight the resources available from bar association and lawyers assistance professionals in our communities to help us with these critical initiatives.

Moderator: Associate Dean Janet Stearns, University of Miami School of Law

Speakers: Dean Gregory Bowman, West Virginia University College of Law; Associate Dean David Jaffe, American University, Washington College of Law; Ms. Judy Rushlow, Florida Lawyer Assistance Inc.; Associate Dean Sondra Tennessee, University of Houston Law Center

3:30 PM - WORKSHOP ON ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION

6:00 PM Discussion Group: Discussions in Dispute Resolution - Negotiation

In light of dispute resolution's existence as a serious field of academic study for approximately 40 years, this discussion group constitutes both a celebration of the dispute resolution field's foundational writings and a reflection of what made these pieces so important. This discussion group is part of a larger book project, entitled Discussions in Dispute Resolution, where the foundational writings in the field's primary segments -- dispute resolution policy, negotiation, mediation, and arbitration -- are the subject of commentary. This discussion group focuses on negotiation and serves as an opportunity to convene the book participants writing on that topic to share their respective reflections and observations and to advise, engage, and comment on their co-contributors' draft commentaries.

Moderators: Professor Laura Pedraza-Fariña, Northwestern Pritzker School of Law; Professor Saurabh Vishnubhakat, Texas A&M University School of Law

Speakers: Professor Jeremy Bock, Tulane University Law School; Professor Neel Sukhatme, Georgetown University Law Center; Professor Stephen Yelderman, Notre Dame Law School

3:30 PM - FIRST AMENDMENT WORKSHOP

6:00 PM Discussion Group: Violent Protests -- Charlottesville and Beyond

The protest by white supremacists in Charlottesville, Virginia sparked a new era in the history of protests. Some of the protestors were both strident and defiant, and they were met with an angry response. The end result was that one of the counter-protestors was killed. The Charlottesville protest was followed by similar protests in other cities. This panel examines whether special rules should apply to such protests.

6:00 PM Discussion Group: Seminar on Global Outreach

Globalization is the new reality of legal instruction. As the American Bar Association has started to mandate more international instruction and law schools look for foreign students to fill vacant seats, international partnerships, once rare for American schools, are becoming commonplace. This panel focuses on international partnerships between law schools including: study abroad programs, student exchanges, faculty exchanges, shared research projects and joint conferences. Speakers will present the benefits of these partnerships, the step-by-step process of creating them, and discuss the challenges faced.

Moderator: Professor Darryl Wilson, Stetson University College of Law

3:30 PM - CRIMINAL LAW & PROCEDURE WORKSHOP

6:30 PM Discussion Group: Conversations on the Warren Court's Impact on Criminal Justice

The 50th anniversary of the end of the Warren Court era is fast approaching. Many of the Court's opinions were recognized in their day as producing a revolution in criminal law and criminal procedure doctrines -- and in provoking a variety of far-reaching reforms in the enforcement of civil rights. Each participant in this discussion group will choose a Warren Court opinion and share their observations on some aspect of the significance of that decision, both in its day and in our own time. Panelists will report interesting discoveries and offer informative critiques regarding the Warren Court's successes and failures in the field of criminal justice.

1:15 PM - WRITING CONNECTIONS WORKSHOP

2:45 PM

Connecting Learning with Deep Thinking: Moving Students Beyond the Shallows

New law comes by making sophisticated connections, so lawyers and judges need to develop methods of close, deep reading and to cultivate long-term memory. Law professors need strategies for teaching students to look beyond the quick answer, to read below the surface, and break down the process of case synthesis and fact analysis into concrete steps. One strategy uses “anchors” to get students beyond the shallows of learning. Another strategy teaches students to “transfer” learning from class to papers, exams, and law practice. The way that professors encourage this deep thinking, anchoring, and transfer is crucial, so the panel also addresses concrete exercises in live critique feedback and cultural awareness in providing feedback.

3:00 PM - Discussion Group: Specialized Legal Education -- Institutes, Certificates, and Programs in the Legal Education Marketplace
5:00 PM

Legal education faces a range of challenges in the marketplace. Preparing students for the workplace has become more difficult as that workplace has evolved from traditional law practice and as traditional legal careers have become the exception rather than the rule. Law schools are responding by offering a broader range of new programs, centers, institutes, certificates and specializations to differentiate their graduates and better prepare them for rewarding and fulfilling careers. Potential topics include problems and challenges in the marketplace for new lawyers, pros and cons of specialized legal education, areas of growth and retrenchment, career counseling and mentoring in the modern market, and mid-career challenges for lawyers and how to overcome them.

6:00 PM Discussion Group: Scholarship Fundamentals -- Becoming a Productive and Fulfilled Scholar

This group of experienced scholars considers what is, and how to develop, a “scholarly agenda,” the alternate routes to tenure and self-fulfillment, using colleagues and research assistants to help in the scholarly enterprise, the art or luck of publishing “well,” the importance of presenting at conferences, and how to enjoy, and not dread, the scholarly process. The discussion will include the “nuts and bolts” of writing – where, when, what and more. The group may break into smaller groups to discuss these issues with participants in depth in a more directed dialogue.

3:00 PM - CRIMINAL LAW & PROCEDURE WORKSHOP

6:00 PM Discussion Group: Judging -- 50 Years After the Chicago Seven Trial

Chief Justice Roberts famously analogized judges to umpires. But sometimes, judges cannot help being drawn into the action. There may be no better illustration than the 1969-70 trial of the Chicago Seven – anti-war activists accused of inciting rioting in connection with the 1968 Democratic nominating convention. While the world watched, the defendants and defense lawyers tested the federal trial judge's control of the courtroom, and the judge failed. The appeals court, critical of the judge's conduct, subsequently overturned guilty verdicts and contempt sanctions. Taking the Chicago Seven trial as a point of departure, this discussion group examines the contemporary role, conduct, challenges and responsibilities of judges in criminal cases.

12:00 PM Law School Admission, Bar Exam, Licensure, and Practice Competency Issues

This panel provides various perspectives on current issues faced by law schools regarding student admissions, bar exam preparation and passage, the training of students regarding practice competency and professionalism, and other issues related to licensure—including but not limited to substance abuse and other health issues. The session particularly focuses on how these topics have increased in attention and concentration over the past decade; how they continue to shape the ongoing evolution and future development of legal education; and what legal education in the future may and should look like. This session is open to all SEALS attendees.

Moderator: Dean David Brennen, University of Kentucky College of Law

Speakers: Mr. William Adams, American Bar Association Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar; Ms. Judith A. ### 10:15 AM - Professionalism, Pain, and Personal Growth: Supporting Our Law Students

12:00 PM

This panel addresses the many ways that we can recognize the need for and offer our students support as they transition from undergraduates to law students and law students to lawyers. Topics include the following: wellness in a culture of competition and challenge; core counseling skills as part of a professor's teaching toolkit and as part of cultivating healthy professional relationships; building and maintaining professional integrity; professionalism and doing what's right, rather than what's easy or convenient; professionalism initiatives and cross-initiatives with the bar; and growth mindset, grit, defensive pessimism, and normalizing challenge--what the research teaches us about motivation and perseverance.

Moderator: Professor Amy Hardberger, St. Mary's University School of Law

Speakers: Professor Pam Armstrong, Albany Law School; Professor Nancy Benavides, Florida State University College of Law; Dean John Delony, Texas Tech University School of Law; Professor Susan Wawrose, University of Dayton School of Law; Professor Emily Zimmerman, Drexel University Thomas R. ### 10:15 AM - Commercial and Consumer Law Panel

12:00 PM

This panel is broadly concerned with issues of consumer protection, the regulation of financial markets, and online dispute resolution. Panelists will present works-in-progress on a range of issues, including bankruptcy, universal basic income, online credit, and empirical research. Panelists will address the ways in which consumer and commercial law should respond to the economic realities affecting consumers and lenders, both with respect to these entities and from a systemic perspective.

1:00 PM - Incorporating Technology into Traditional Law School Classes -- Two Approaches

2:45 PM

With wave after wave of technological advances, it is difficult to know how to incorporate new technology into traditional law school courses. For example, how can software help with students' self-assessment? How can online learning be utilized in a traditional class? This panel deals with two approaches that can answer these questions and help enhance self-directed learning. The first approach takes advantage of software to assess student outcomes; the second integrates online components into courses. This is a nuts-and-bolts session by panelists who are actively engaged in implementing these approaches in law schools around the country. One panelist has taken a software idea (Core Grammar for Lawyers) from concept to finished product; another has established and managed online degree programs for law schools. Both law professors on the panel are experienced in incorporating technology and learning theory into their classes.

Moderator: Keith Sipe, Ffounder and Publisher of Carolina Academic Press (CAP)

Panelists: Scott Sipe (Associate Publisher, CAP) oversaw the development of Core Grammar for Lawyers which has been used in more thanover 140 law schools. Scott is a programmer in addition to running Carolina Academic Pres's day-to-day operations.

Steve Burnett (Executive Director Experiential and Online Learning, CAP) managed the development of TWEN and then moved from West to Kaplan where he developed online legal education programs.

Chrissy Brown Cerniglia (Stetson Law School) teaches experientially and was responsible for developing teaching guides for professors while at Loyola Law School, New Orleans. Chrissy helps faculty take advantage of online education by developing intuitive interfaces.

Steve Friedland (Elon Law School) is a well-known innovator in law school education. Steve is currently developing software and will discuss the ins and outs of getting a project off the ground.

2:45 PM Connecting with the Possible: Advancing Despite Hierarchies

Hierarchies continue to challenge the advancement of faculty in law schools and lawyers in practice. This panel will discuss various types of hierarchies, including hierarchies of status and gender. The discussion will address the hierarchies and low-promotability work, gender sidelining in practice, gender and academic freedom, navigating hierarchies as an administrator, and effective student pipeline programs that disrupt hierarchies in the law school and beyond.

1:00 PM - CONSTITUTIONAL LAW WORKSHOP

2:45 PM Legislative Generality and the Constitution: Klein, Equal Protection, and Legislative and Presidential Singling-Out

Recently, the principles underlying the venerable case of United States v. Klein have again risen to prominence. The limits of Klein's "rule of decision" holding became an issue in the recent Bank Markazi and Patchak cases. Meanwhile, lower courts continue to wrestle with the equal protection "class of one doctrine" the Supreme Court validated in 2000. Finally, Congress and the President have engaged in singling out any constitutional principle requiring that government action be generally applicable. These phenomena raise questions whether the principles that underlay Klein restrict such hyper-specific government action. This panel will address these facially disparate phenomenon to uncover possible connections related to any such broader principle.

4:15 PM Redefining Status: Intersections of Diversity and Status in the Legal Academy

The panel addresses the layers of diversity legal writing and clinical faculty of color experience due to status, race, gender, sexual orientation, disability and other differences. By focusing on three key areas, the panelists examine how confronting their own struggles with personal, societal and professional hierarchies can be empowering to students, institutions, and the panelists themselves. Through the lens of empowerment and intersectionality, this panel segues into a broader discussion group titled Promoting Inclusion and Equity: Connecting Disciplines, Legal Education, and the Legal Profession. Accordingly, this panel is important to trending discussions of diversity, inclusion, and equity.

Discussion Group: Legal Education and Debate in Politically Charged Times

In the last few years, tensions between the left and the right seem to have reached an all-time high. The white supremacist protest in Charlottesville, which resulted in the death of a counter-protestor, is emblematic of the problem. However, the University of Florida, the University of California-Berkeley, and other schools, have been beset by similar problems. This discussion group involves short presentations from a number of deans who have either thought deeply about the problem, or who have had to deal directly with it. After the presentations, the discussion will be opened up for audience participation.

6:00 PM Discussion Group: Deans Candid Discussion -- Are Law Schools on the Right Track Yet?

The topics of morning and afternoon sessions of the Deans Workshop Panels culminate with this discussion program. This "Cross Fire/Lightning Round" session continues a tradition of the last several years at SEALS, in which deans and former deans candidly discuss and debate hot topics of legal education. The specific topics depend on the "hot issues" of the moment but will include (among other topics) issues pertaining to law school admissions, tuition discounting, and bar examinations. This panel also will consider questions about the sustainability of the current model of legal education. This program is open to all SEALS attendees.

3:00 PM - Discussion Group: Deans Giving Advice to Newer Law Professors

6:00 PM

Newer law professors, those just starting and those who have been teaching a few years, have many questions but are often not sure who to ask for advice. Sometimes there are an array of vice deans, associate deans, and assistant deans but no clear information about who does what. Also, newer professors may be concerned that if they ask a question about teaching, tenure, or other issues it could be perceived negatively. This group, now in its fifth year, provides newer professors with a group of deans happy to provide advice and to answer individual questions.

Discussion Group: Sexual Harassment Law -- So Much Success, So Much Failure

Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 revolutionized the workplace by prohibiting sex discrimination in employment and recognizing that sexual harassment is one form of sex discrimination. Practices once regarded as normal workplace culture are now officially unlawful. Yet major sexual harassment scandals during the last two years reveal that sexual harassment remains a serious and persistent problem. Somehow, the law enacted in 1964 and strengthened by amendment in 1991 failed to make the workplace as safe as it should be. How and why has the law failed, and what should be done to make the law more effective?

4:30 PM - WRITING CONNECTIONS WORKSHOP

6:30 PM Discussion Group: Promoting Inclusion and Equity: Connecting Disciplines, Legal Education, and the Legal Profession

The discussion group includes current or former administrators, tenured faculty, and junior faculty. It examines how the faculty of color from all disciplines – doctrinal, legal writing, clinical, and academic support – can empower each other, students, and (hopefully) institutional administrations for the purpose of increasing diversity, promoting inclusiveness, and increasing equity in the legal academy and profession. Recognizing scholarship as a common thread, this discussion group will foster open dialogue from a cross-section of people who bring different perspectives based on race, gender, sexual orientation, disability and other differences. It complements a panel discussion titled Redefining Status: Intersections of Diversity and Status in the Legal Academy and enhances trending discussions on diversity, inclusion, and equity.

Moderators: Professor Jane Cross, Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad College of Law; Professor Brenda Gibson, North Carolina Central University School of Law; Professor Shakira Pleasant, University of Miami School of Law

Discussants: Professor Deborah Archer, New York University School of Law; Professor Elizabeth Berenguer, Campbell University, Norman Adrian Wiggins School of Law; Professor Kevin Brown, Indiana University, Maurer School of Law; Professor Nancy Chi Cantalupo, Barry University, Dwayne O. ### 8:00 AM - 10:00 AM Blockchain Technology and the Law

This panel addresses legal and regulatory issues involved in distributed ledger technology (blockchain). Today, blockchain technology is being used to build tools and infrastructure that help lawyers draft contracts, record commercial transactions, and verify legal documents. In addition, investment in blockchain technology has surged over the past year, inviting both legitimate businesses and modern-day scammers. To date, regulatory agencies have yet to determine a consistent approach to the technology that protects the public while not stifling innovation. This session addresses some of the myriad issues that the technology faces and provides insights on how best to address those issues.

8:00 AM - 10:00 AM CRIMINAL LAW & PROCEDURE WORKSHOP Perspectives on Teaching Criminal Procedure

This panel considers new and innovative approaches to teaching the investigative criminal procedure course. Criminal procedure is an intriguing and constantly evolving area of the law that seemingly captures the public interest unlike most other courses. More than 68 million people have downloaded the hit podcast Serial and 19.3 million people have watched Netflix's documentary series, Making a Murderer. Both illustrative examples tell the true stories of criminal defendants' experience with our justice system through footage or audio recordings of the actual trial—essentially opening the courtroom doors to the public at large. This panel addresses how to provide a criminal procedure course that does the same for law students.

Moderator: Professor Brian Owsley, University of North Texas Dallas College of Law

8:00 AM - WORKSHOP ON BUSINESS LAW

10:00 AM Discussion Group: U.S. v. Martoma and the Future of Insider Trading Law

Since the Supreme Court decided Salman v. United States in 2016, there has been much uncertainty surrounding the rigor of the "personal benefit" test for tipper-tippee insider trading liability. The water was muddied still further when on August 23, 2017, a split panel of the Second Circuit decided United States v. Martoma, interpreting Salman as holding that a gift of material nonpublic information can personally benefit a tipper even if there is no "meaningfully close personal relationship" between the tipper and tippee. Martoma offers yet another example of a U.S. insider trading regime that is in flux. This discussion group addresses the implications of Martoma, as well as other U.S. insider trading enforcement themes.

8:00 AM - NEWER LAW TEACHER WORKSHOP

10:00 AM Discussion Group: Complying with the New ABA Standards on Assessment and Feedback

This session will explore the development and use of assessment tools, especially in light of ABA Standard 302, on learning outcomes, and Standard 314, on formative assessment and meaningful feedback. The primary emphasis will be on how to give and receive meaningful feedback. The tools for dispensing meaningful feedback, and consequently topics for discussion, include writing assignments, exercises, simulations, formative evaluations, and final examinations.

8:00 AM - FIRST AMENDMENT WORKSHOP

11:00 AM Discussion Group: The NFL Protests: Protest and Free Speech in Modern America

Throughout the recent NFL football season, there has been much controversy regarding the fact that some players have chosen to kneel during the playing of the national anthem. These protests prompted President Trump to castigate the protestors in tweets, and Vice-President Pence to walk out of a football game before it even started. This discussion group examines the reasons for the protests their place in the history of U.S. protests, and the way forward.

9:30 AM - White House-Department of Justice Relations: Executive Control or Independence?

12:00 PM

This panel explores relations between the President, White House staff, and the Department of Justice. Department functions such as intelligence threat reports, budgetary and policy priorities, and clemency advice assist the President in the performance of constitutional functions. Thus, personnel require interaction with, and direction from, the President and White House advisors. However, White House influence is problematic in such other functions like criminal investigations, prosecutions, and intelligence analysis formulation. All administrations must navigate complex and delicate relations between the White House, Main Justice, and U.S. Attorneys' Offices. The Trump administration brought these tensions in White House-Department relations into sharp focus. The panel addresses sources of law, policy, and tradition that shape proper interaction between the White House and the Department.

This panel/discussion addresses courses on mindfulness and contemplative lawyering, such as Sustaining Practices for the Legal Profession, Contemplative Law, and other experiential courses. The purpose of such courses is to provide valuable insight into dealing with commonly known law school challenges including highly competitive situations, intellectually demanding work, multi-tasking, and the ensuing stress and difficult emotions. Specifically, mindfulness has been shown to help individuals develop better habits of focus, listening, flexibility, and concentration, thereby fitting squarely within the legal profession's needs.

10:15 AM - WRITING CONNECTIONS WORKSHOP

12:00 PM Discussion Group: Connecting through Diversity -- Teach, Learn, Educate Yourself

This group will share ideas from scholarly endeavors, personal experience, or classroom interactions to explore how we can connect through diversity. Some group members write about connections with people with different cultural and societal backgrounds; examine the underrepresentation of women in the partnership ranks of law firms; and seek to use co-cultural theory to empower those who have typically been "outsiders." Some group members will describe their own self-education around historical and current racism, bias, privilege, and injustice, so that they can be more effective leaders and teachers. Many will bring ideas for teaching students to be aware of their own experiences and biases, and reflect on how that background will affect future clients.

Moderator: Professor Suzanne Rowe, University of Oregon School of Law

Discussants: Professor Mary Adkins, University of Florida, Fredric G. Levin College of Law; Professor Cindy Archer, Loyola Law School, Los Angeles; Professor Hilary Bell, University of Hamad bin Khalifa University (associated with Northwestern Pritzker School of Law); Professor Leslie Culver, California Western School of Law; Professor Kirsten K. ### 10:15 AM - Torts Intersections

12:00 PM

American legal education is replete with overlaps, and Torts in particular brushes up against several other first-year subjects. Think of constitutional torts, "contorts" for the space where Torts and Contracts come together, the Civil Procedure jurisdiction illustration featuring people who live in State A and drive carelessly in State B, and history shared by common law crimes and intentional torts that both originate in trespass. Torts has anti-intersections too, such as the way both it and Property tend to neglect nuisance, conversion/trespass to chattels, and landlord-tenant personal injury law. This panel presents "Torts and..." in the curriculum, broaching ideas about not only classroom coverage but writing (and reading) legal scholarship.

10:15 AM - WORKSHOP ON CONSUMER PROTECTION

12:00 PM #Hipster Antitrust

According to stylized facts, millennials are world-conscious, tech-savvy, pragmatic progressives. This picture contrasts to the firm-conscious, tech-savvy, yet conservative approach to antitrust that has plagued the discipline. Even conservative bastions like the Chicago School have recognized that the economy has become increasingly concentrated due to a lack of antitrust enforcement.

This panel explores what policy goals might be in play when Millennials rule the world. Will American antitrust regrow its beard of "big is bad?" Will single-firm dominance become the comfortable flannel of hipster antitrust? Will concern about mergers leading to economic dominance leading to political dominance make a comeback like LPs or Polaroids? The panel explores what the future might hold.

Good Lawyers Don't Eat What They Kill: Professional Values and Personal Goals

This panel will discuss Eli Wald and Russel Pearce's forthcoming book entitled "Good Lawyers Don't Eat What They Kill: A Guide for Reconciling Professional Values and Personal Goals." Wald and Pearce are preeminent scholars in professional responsibility and the book and this panel will explore their nuanced and contextual approach to legal ethics and lawyering. Wald and Pearce argue that law schools, bar regulators, and the legal profession have been too reliant on an "autonomous self-interest" model, to the detriment of lawyers and the public at large. Wald and Pearce argue for relationally self-interested professionalism, which expands narrow self-interest to include the relationships and contexts that lawyers operate within, to the benefit of the individual, the profession, and the public.

Law schools are seeing an increase in different types of assessment across the curriculum—largely driven by ABA Standard 314—changing the way our students are learning and how we are teaching. As we transition to a learner-centered, assessment-driven curriculum, we need to know how to assess FOR learning and how to collaborate with faculty colleagues to maximize student growth. This panel draws on current scholarship from assessment experts to provide concrete ideas on how to move beyond midterms and sample answers to assess student learning.

This panel will explore how various professors and clinics invite students to comment on proposed regulations at the state and federal level. Comment writing is not “legal writing” as such, since any person can do it. Comments filed in practice range from short handwritten notes and single sentences to hundred-page brief-like documents with exhibits and tables of contents. Panelists Roy Gardner, Sarah Morath, and Nicole Iannarone have each written articles on incorporating comments into their writing classes and clinics, respectively. This panel will present a live opportunity to explore the comment as a writing genre and a tool for policy advocacy.

TPolice officers fatally shoot about one thousand people each year in this country. The majority of victims are white while a disproportionate number are Blacks. If Black and all lives matter, why are police officers rarely prosecuted for using lethal force in non-custodial situations? Over the last several years, the U.S. Supreme Court, other policy makers, and the public have debated this question. How should the law protect the fundamental right to life from wrongful governmental infringement while supporting justified police use of lethal force? This discussion group explores this pressing issue.

8:00 AM - 10:00 AM Discussion Group: Public Law at the Mid-Term of the Trump Era

Democratic processes are under assault as unprecedented campaign spending and foreign interference threaten to undermine their legitimacy in the eyes of the ordinary voter. At the same time, the institutions of the federal government are under tremendous pressure to perform increasingly complex and controversial functions. The panel will examine the extent to which public law scholarship, teaching and practice have adjusted and responded to politics and the implications for democratic processes and institutions (how they are working, how they should be working, and what can be done to study and strengthen them). Potential topics: the law of democracy (campaign finance and election law), Congress, legislation, regulation, presidential lawmaking, and judicial interpretation of legislative and executive action.

8:00 AM - 11:00 AM BUSINESS LAW WORKSHOP

Discussion Group: Alternative Ways of Going Public

For many years, the standard definition of a "public offering" included (most typically) an offer and sale of securities registered under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "1933 Act"). Some also would have traditionally included in the definition of a public offering, in certain contexts, intrastate or Regulation A offerings exempt from registration under the 1933 Act. Today, however, with the advent of crowdfunding and initial coin offerings (among other things), the term "public offering" arguably takes on a broader meaning. This discussion group features a dialogue on the various means and effects of conducting a public offering in the current environment, together with related analysis and observations.

8:45 AM - WORKSHOP ON MINDFULNESS

10:00 AM Mindfulness, Improv, and Advocacy

Many of the key tenets of improvisation theater are parallel to those of mindfulness: focusing on present moment awareness, and remaining curious and open-minded to whatever happens on stage, however unpredictable. Improvisation and mindfulness both awaken us to the potential impact that physical posture plays in our confidence, mood, and ability to interpret body language cues in ourselves and others. This panel will introduce improv and other exercises and activities that reinforce the very skills and mindsets that mindfulness fosters. We will explore how these exercises might be adapted in courses or programs on mindfulness, legal communication, and advocacy.

ABA Standard 303(a)(3) has been recently revised to require all students to complete "one or more experiential course(s) totaling at least six credit hours." This revision will undoubtedly increase demand for experiential learning courses and clinics at law schools and presents an opportunity for innovative teaching and community partnerships in the area of trusts and estates.

Discussion group participants share their varied experiences with experiential learning in this field and discuss the various avenues for experiential learning in Trusts and Estates. Topics will include the following: (1) trusts and estates simulation courses; (2) trusts and estates in clinical legal education; (3) opportunities for field placements; (4) funding and grant opportunities; and (5) community partnerships.

10:15 AM - LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT LAW WORKSHOP

12:00 PM Discussion Group: New and Established Voices in Labor and Employment Law

This program is designed to give newer scholars and more established scholars, engaged in addressing legal concerns within the workplace, the opportunity to receive feedback on their draft papers from experienced workplace law scholars before the upcoming submission cycle. A Call for Papers describing the program in detail was generated separately. The organizers primarily have sought submissions from labor and employment law scholars with five or fewer years of full-time teaching experience (not counting the 2017-18 academic year) but also considered drafts from existing labor and employment scholars regardless of experience.

1:00 PM - 2:45 PM     Perspectives on the Future of Gender Equality in the Legal Profession
This panel focuses on gender and equality throughout the legal profession. Panelists reflect historically about the exclusion of women and minorities, and consider the stories of those who have successfully ascended into positions of leadership and power and those who were overlooked despite their impeccable qualifications. Panelists also examine contemporary practices that disparately impact women and minorities, such as their appointment into academic leadership positions in times of crisis—in a context when these positions require harder work with fewer economic rewards. They speculate about what the future of the profession, creation of federal laws/policies, and judicial decision-making might look like with more diverse representation, and they consider how many of these phenomena exist not just in law, but across other professions.

3:00 PM - Discussion Group: Making the Case for Legal Education and Explaining the Impact and Importance of Giving

5:30 PM

Legal education costs more than just tuition. To cover all the costs, alumni participation is essential. But how does a law school make sure that alumni of all ages understand the importance of financial support. Younger alums often want to know exactly where their gift is going and what it is doing. Older alums have their own questions. This discussion group will address how law schools can make the case for continued support of legal education, illustrating the importance of unrestricted giving. The group will explore other issues related to alumni giving as well. Participants will discuss what their schools are doing to help convince alumni that their alma mater is worthy of philanthropic support.

The Trusts and Estates course focuses on gratuitous transfers of wealth. Yet the practice of Trusts and Estates includes more topics. The dynamics of modern practice has encouraged the expansion of topics covered in a Trusts and Estates course. This discussion group features teaching innovations, including knowledge, skills, and values, offered by topic overlaps. Specifically, discussion group participants share why and how they have incorporated additional topics into the Trusts and Estates course. Those topics will include the following: (1) planning for incapacity; (2) guardianship proceedings; (3) governmental benefits; (4) health care; (5) domestic violence and abuse; (6) family relationships; (7) property management; and (8) professional responsibility relating to representation of clients, including elderly clients and clients in distress.

This group builds upon the many law professors who serve in the NCAA-mandated role of Faculty Athletics Representatives at their institutions, but it is open to others who are interested in the topic. We take into consideration the role of the faculty, the administration, and the NCAA in college sports. With recent significant cases involving Ole Miss, UNC, Louisville, Syracuse, Baylor, Adidas shoes, and more, universities need to evaluate programs and perhaps re-think the administration and regulation of them. The emergence of the "autonomy group" within the NCAA also provides an opportunity for some schools to reshape the direction of intercollegiate sports.

9:00 AM - 11:00 AM BUSINESS LAW WORKSHOP

Discussion Group: The Role of Corporate Personhood in Masterpiece Cakeshop

In the United States Supreme Court case of Masterpiece Cakeshop, Ltd. v. Colorado Civil Rights Commission, the issue presented is: "Whether applying Colorado's public accommodations law to compel the petitioner to create expression that violates his sincerely held religious beliefs about marriage violates the free speech or free exercise clauses of the First Amendment." A group of corporate law professors has filed an amicus brief in support of the CCRC. One of the arguments in that brief is: "Because Of The Separate Legal Personality Of Corporations And Shareholders, The Constitutional Interests Of Shareholders Should Not Be Projected Onto The Corporation." This discussion group features a dialogue on the pros and cons of this argument, together with related analysis and observations.

Moderator: Professor Stefan Padfield, University of Akron School of Law

Discussants: Professor Eric Chaffee, University of Toledo College of Law; Professor Sergio Gramitto, Cornell Law School; Professor Joan Heminway, The University of Tennessee College of Law; Professor Arnold Loewy, Texas Tech University School of Law; Professor Barry McDonald, Pepperdine University School of Law; Professor Brett McDonnell, University of Minnesota Law School; Professor George Mocsary, Southern Illinois University School of Law; Professor James Nelson, University of Houston Law Center; Professor Thomas Rutledge, Stoll, Kennon & Ogden; Professor Lynn Stout, Cornell Law School; Professor Jennifer Taub, Vermont Law School; Professor Ciara Torres-Spelliscy, Stetson University College of Law

9:00 AM - 11:00 AM Discussion Group: Philosophical Reflections on the Rule of Law

A Recent New York Times headline read: "Donald Trump Could Threaten U.S. Rule of Law, Scholars Say." The term "rule of law" is increasingly used to critique (and defend) domestic, foreign, and international regimes, but it is rarely defined. What is the rule of law? What is its value to liberal societies? Should it be a normative goal for nonliberal societies? Is there a connection between rule of law and political obligation? This discussion group gathers philosophers from across legal academia to offer reflection on these and other questions pertaining to the rule of law.

Moderator: Professor John Anderson, Mississippi College School of Law

Discussants: Professor Joseph D'Agostino, Savannah Law School; Professor Gaya Davidyan, Moscow State University Faculty of Law (Russia); Professor Richard Delgado, The University of Alabama School of Law; Professor Mihailis Diamantis, University of Iowa College of Law; Professor Raff Donelson, Louisiana State University Paul M. ### 9:00 AM - 12:00 PM Discussion Group: Faculty Development Deans: Meeting Challenges and Supporting Faculty Members

This discussion group consists of professors and deans tasked with encouraging, supporting, and promoting scholarship and teaching at their law schools. This is part of recurring effort to share ideas and strategies related to faculty development. In the past, the group has engaged with newer scholars to help them understand how the research dean can be a valuable resource in their progression as teachers and scholars. This year, we want to expand the focus to include supporting mid-level and senior faculty members, confronting challenges and benefits to fostering positive relationships with the university and other departments, and acknowledging the emerging role of external funding in times of decreasing enrollment.

Moderator: Professor Teri Baxter, The University of Tennessee College of Law

Discussants: Professor Michele Alexandre, The University of Mississippi School of Law; Professor Kara Bruce, University of Toledo College of Law; Professor Darren Bush, University of Houston Law Center; Professor Naomi Cahn, The George Washington University Law School; Dean Colin Crawford, University of Louisville Brandeis School of Law; Professor Scott Dodson, University of California Hastings College of the Law; Professor David Fagundes, University of Houston Law Center; Professor Joshua Fershee, West Virginia University College of Law; Professor Brian Gallini, University of Arkansas School of Law; Professor Ruben J. ### 9:00 AM - CIVIL PROCEDURE WORKSHOP

12:00 PM Discussion Group: The Revised Discovery Rules in Practice

Chief Justice Roberts famously indicated the 2015 discovery rule amendments were a "big deal," designed "to address the most serious impediments to just, speedy, and efficient resolution of civil disputes." This discussion group, with the benefit of more than two years of experience under the revised discovery rules, explores the extent to which the Chief Justice's assessment is playing out in practice. Has the proportionately standard made a significant impact? Has greater uniformity been achieved with respect to the storage obligations for electronically stored information (ESI)? What approaches are courts taking with respect to sanctions for violations of the new discovery rules (especially in light of the Supreme Court's recent decision in Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. v. Haeger)? And what future projects may the rules committee have in store regarding discovery and other matters? This discussion group gathers procedural scholars together for a dialogue on these and other discovery-related questions.

Moderators: Professor Thomas Metzloff, Duke Law School; Professor Charles Rhodes, South Texas College of Law Houston

Discussants: Professor Richard Freer, Emory University School of Law; Professor Megan La Belle, The Catholic University of America, Columbus School of Law; Professor Ramona Lampley, St. Mary's University School of Law; Professor Thomas Main, University of Nevada, Las Vegas William S. ## WEST ACADEMIC ASSESSMENT

Your school's partner in student learning and assessment.

West Academic Assessment is an easy-to-use digital offering designed to enrich the learning experience and evaluate student understanding of core concepts as they are learning them in class. It is the most comprehensive product for formative assessment that will help students succeed during all three years of law school.

Our reasonably priced subscription option, available in 13 subjects for fall 2018 courses, with more on the way, includes over 4,000 customizable multiple-choice assessment questions that are:

- Faculty-authored and classroom-tested, with helpful explanations from the Hornbook Series®
- Keyed to our most popular casebooks, or available by subject to accompany any casebook
- Available at the chapter/topic level for use during the semester, with subject area review questions for end-of-semester use
- Accompanied by grammar and usage questions
